GERMANS URGE MOVE TO TAKE ALL OF FRANCE

Told by Leaders To Act As Guard Against Invasion.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 27 — German leaders are urging Adolf Hitler to occupy all France to forestall a growing threat of an attempt to establish a second front in western Europe, an usually well-informed foreign quarter declared today.

At the same time the independent news agency at Beirut, Syria, said that 500,000 Italian soldiers were concentrated in northern Italy, ready to move into France to reinforce the German occupation.

The fear that the Nazis might be forced to take over the third of unoccupied France which still is governed was said to have come from "trustworthy underground channels" — the same sources which recently reported that the Germans were moving heavy guns from the Maginot and Siegfried lines to the French west coast.

The source credited with relaying the information also said he had been informed more than 100,000 French residents have been evacuated from the coastal areas in connection with the German defense preparations.

The area between Boulogne and Calais, he said, "has been practically well-cleared by the Nazis of everybody suspected of being ready to aid allied invaders."

May Recall Hero

The same source asserted there was a possibility that Hitler might recall General Johannes Blaskowitz—hero of the Polish campaign who has been in virtual retirement since reportedly disagreeing with the fuehrer over the invasion of Russia—to assist in reorganizing the defenses of western Europe.

In line with this reorganization it was said to have replaced 35 German divisional commanders—more than the last three or four years in a drastic shakeup.

The source warned, however, that all these reported developments should not be considered a sign of weakness on the part of the Germans at the present stage. They should be taken for the present for just what they are—evidence of German preparedness before the allies must be equipped to overcome if and when they invade, he said.

"Home Defense" Order Issued

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, June 27 — A Tass dispatch from Stockholm today said Vichy advices said Gen. Rene Bridoux, secretary of state for war, has signed an order for formation of French "home defense detachments" under command of the German general staff.

The army, artillery, anti-aircraft and tank units will be formed and the Germans will supply them, the dispatch said.

Hitler Occupation of All France Awaited as Signal for Revolution

BY ROY PORTER

LONDON, June 27 — Hitler moves to occupy all France is a step which dispatches from Vichy indicate he is considering — the German fuehrer's first one of the first major moves he has encountered in the conquered peoples of Europe.

It is believed that Hitler pushing the unoccupied third of France will automatically set off a series of fireworks that can be termed a foreign revolution.

Exactly what the French people are waiting for—just as they have been waiting for an official statement from Washington that there is to be a "second front" established in western Europe.

The most recent word from occupied France—which is not yet outdated—is that there is rebellion and antagonism brewing in the territory. Obviously, the French people have no guns with which to shoot—but they are ready to shoot the instant anyone can bring them the guns.

"We cannot fight machine guns with pitchforks," one frenchman said to me only a few days ago. "But we are prepared and waiting: just bring us some weapons."

The things the French have not forgotten are these:

The slaughter of more than 200,000 civilians in the refugee-clogged roads from the northern battlefronts during May and June of 1940.

The "passive" occupation of two-thirds of the country and the rifling of French economy by the Germans, paying off in inflation francs, printed at will on German presses.

The capture and detention of more than 1,500,000 prisoners of war—the majority of whom still are in German prison camps.

The French are ready for an invasion, so long as it is the Americans who do the invading.

U. S. FLIERS AID IN TWO BATTLES

By The Associated Press

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese armies, reinforced by American fliers, battled Japanese spearheads knifing toward the heart of China on a dozen fronts today while in the battle of Australia, allied airmen were credited with another sweeping victory over the Japanese.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that allied interceptor planes clashed with 18 Japanese heavy bombers yesterday over Port Moresby, key United Nations outpost in New Guinea, and probably shot down six to 10 of them.

Little damage was inflicted by the raiders.

The situation on the east China war front remained serious, but there were indications that Gen. Chiang's armies were stiffening against Japanese invasion columns in Chekiang and Kiangsi provinces.

Significantly, the Japanese were silent on their important phase of the vast and complicated struggle.

Turning to other sectors, Japanese dispatches asserted that Japanese forces in the south China province of Kwangtung had opened a general offensive against Chinese troops southeast of Tsungfa and sent the Chinese 152nd and 53rd divisions fleeing into the mountains.

Tsungfa is 50 miles northeast of Canton.

Other Japanese dispatches said Gen. Liu Chih, commander of the Chinese 27th army defending southern Shansi province, had fled to the mountains with a 'handful' of his men.

Marion County Collections Are Near 125-Ton Mark; Pep Meeting Held.

A total of 212,319 pounds of scrap rubber, only 19 tons short of the 125-ton Marion county quota, has been collected so far in the scrap rubber drive, Tabulator George Long of the Standard Oil Co. reported today.

Yesterday's collection totaled 21,184 pounds, a new one-day collection record. Another one-day record was made yesterday when 1,450 pounds was donated. The remaining rubber was purchased at a penny-a-pound rate.

By proclamation of Mayor Russell C. Snare today is "Ohio Rubber Day" in Marion. A public demonstration at the court house at 2 this afternoon highlighted activities of the day. Speakers included Mayor Snare, George Alber, Marion county chairman of the Ohio Salvage committee, and other scrap rubber drive officials.

Meanwhile, Boy Scouts under the direction of Loy D. Rhoads, scoutmaster of Troop 1 sponsored by the Elks lodge, continued to canvass Marion city streets.

The drive initiated by President Roosevelt to alleviate a shortage of rubber vital to the allied war effort is scheduled to end Tuesday. However, Marion sponsors are expected to continue collection of scrap material for at least 10 days. One petroleum company official here recently said that his firm would purchase old rubber brought to them anytime.

LORAIN STRIKERS VOTE TO RETURN

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

LORAIN, O., June 27 — The 3,500 steel workers who have been on strike since Thursday at the National Tube Co. voted today to return to work.

• • •

LORAIN, O., June 27—Members of the CIO United Steelworkers of America were called to a mass meeting today to discuss the unauthorized strike of approximately 3,500 pipe mill employes of the National Tube Co., who are seeking to enforce unspecified wage demands.

Workers, union officials and federal labor conciliators met for three hours last night but announced no developments.

William F. Donovan, district director of the union, has termed the walkout, which began Thursday, "illegal" and in violation of a contract signed several months ago. The contract provides either the management or union must give 60 days notice of desire to reopen it and calls for the normal steel industry basic minimum wage of 72½ cents an hour. The pipe mill average, said a company spokesman, is between 95 cents and $1 an hour.

The company announced last night that E. G. Price, local superintendent, had sent a telegram to Donovan referring to his characterization of the strike as "illegal" and declaring "you now declare that resumption of work is dependent upon this management's agreement to start immediate negotiations on the settlement of grievances.

"This management," the telegram continued, "has consistently and speedily during the entire life of the labor agreement discussed and settled grievances. When the labor agreement is again in force, following resumption of work, this management will immediately meet, discuss and attempt to settle any alleged grievances in accordance with contract procedure."

In Akron, war production was resumed at the plant of the General Tire & Rubber Co., where 60 mill room workers on Wednesday had ceased work in protest against the re-employment of 25 aliens discharged immediately after Pearl Harbor.

Draft Boards In Ohio Registering New Group Today

Approximately 165,000 Ohio young men between the ages of 18 and 20½ years, of whom about 800 will be from Marion county, will register with selective service boards today and Tuesday.

It will be the nation's fifth registration under the selective service act.

The registration in Marion will be conducted today from noon till 6 p. m. and next Tuesday from 7 a. m. till 9 p. m. at the following offices:

Board 1 (Wards 1, 2 and 3), in the McNeal-Wolford building on West Center street.

Board 2 (Wards 4, 5 and 6), in the Marion Reserve Power Co. building on South Main street.

Board 3 (Rural), in the Palace theater building on West Center street.

President Roosevelt set Tuesday, June 30, from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. for the registration, but Col. C. W. Gosle, state selective service director, added today's noon to 6 p. m. period for those who might find it difficult to sign up at draft boards next week, the Associated Press reported.

The fifth registration specifically applies to all males born between Jan. 1, 1922, and June 30, 1924, inclusive. Only those 20 or over may be called now for military service. Persons failing to register are liable to fine or imprisonment.

Men in institutions such as asylums, hospitals, jails and prisons will be registered when they are discharged. Persons ill temporarily were instructed to notify draft boards and arrange for later registration.

Youths away from home may register at the most convenient enrollment center, but draft officials urged all registrants to sign up at their own boards if possible.

Factory Employe Burned by Acid

Delvin Tyo, 12, of 546 Davids street, an employe of the Defiance Pressed steel company, is in the City hospital as a result of burns received early yesterday afternoon. The attending physician said this morning that his condition was fair.

Company officials said that he was accidentally burned when a quantity of acid he was pouring into a tank slipped from his hands, causing general burns on his face and upper part of his body.

U. S. AIR UNITS REACH BRITAIN

American Fliers Soon To Join in Mass Raids on Nazi Factory Cities.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 27—It was reliably disclosed today that United States army air force units are in the British isles laying the groundwork for American participation in the mass raids on Germany.

Nothing has yet been said to indicate that aircraft have arrived to equip the units for actual operations.

Precedent indicates that the first public announcement of United States participation in the European air warfare will be by the blast of bombs on Germany.

The first official hint of the U. S. air crews' presence in Britain was given Thursday in a statement by Maj. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, American commander for the European war theater, that pilots were arriving "in rapidly increasing numbers."

"Well-informed air observers had known for weeks that air crews were taking shape at a base somewhere in the British Isles, but security reasons prevented disclosure.

The nature and extent of the preparations for operation of American fliers and aircraft in the big assaults on German war industry still are secret.

It has been stated, however, that United States officers will operate independently of the RAF, although collaborating with it in a long-range bombing plan.

FREE BAND CONCERT SCHEDULED SUNDAY

Harding High Musicians To Play at Garfield Park.

Between 3 and 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the Harding High school band will give a free concert at the Garfield park Chautauqua pavilion. The 70-piece band has been practicing every Monday night at Central Junior High school under the direction Homer Hoffmar, director of instrumental music in the Marion public schools. Playing with the band are last year's seniors and also students who will be sophomores next year.

This concert is the first of a series of two to be given free of charge for the enjoyment of Marion citizens. The second will be presented at the same place on Sunday afternoon, July 12.

The following program will be played tomorrow: "The Star Spangled Banner," "March of the Brigade" by Zamecnik, "The Crosley March" by Fillmore, "Caliph of Bagdad" by Boildieu, "Stars and Stripes Forever" by Sousa, "American Patrol March" by Meecham and "The Minstrel Man" by Talbott.

WPB EXTENDS RAZOR MFG.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 27—The war production board today postponed from June 23 to July 31, the effective date of its limitation order restricting productions of razors and blades.

Under terms of the extension, manufacturers will continue to produce 70 per cent of the safety razors and 100 per cent of the blades and straight razors made in 1940.

AXIS PUSHES ON TO MATRAH, ITALIANS SAY

Motorized Forces Reported in Contact with Defense of British Stronghold.

By The Associated Press

Italian headquarters said today that Axis motorized forces "have made contact with the defenses of Matrah," main city Pat Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had opened his grand assault in the four-powered battle of Egypt.

Matrah [illegible] outside Egypt, is the main British stronghold barring Rommel's path to the rich delta lands of the Nile and the Suez canal.

With masters of the entire middle east perhaps among the onlookers, Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck's British empire armies were said to have been reorganized and reinforced to meet the Axis onslaught.

Dispatches from Cairo said dumping blows by U. S. army and RAF bombers had already gained precious hours for the realignment of the hard-hit British 8th army, worn by the long retreat across the sands of the Libyan desert.

Striking at Rommel's major Libyan bases at Tobruk and Bengasi, American and British airmen were said to have hampered the flow of vital food, water, oil and munitions to the Axis invaders, delaying the lightning pace of Rommel's advance.

An Italian communique emphasized the "repeated and violent encounters with enemy bomber and fighter formations," and asserted that Axis planes had shot down 43 British aircraft while anti-aircraft defenses sent another crashing into the desert in flames.

British headquarters in Cairo gave no indication that the battle had been joined, declaring merely that Rommel's mechanized armies, advancing 15 miles along the Mediterranean sea coast, had rolled up within 15 miles of Matruh.

"Our covering forces were in contact with the enemy's forward troops through the day," a British communique said.

The War In Russia

As Rommel lunged forward into the Nile valley, Adolf Hitler's Ukraine army resumed with it a violent and costly push offensive below Kharkov, aimed at the Caucasus oil fields.

Latest advices, however, declared the Russians had checked the new German drive, repulsing Nazi attacks east of Kupyansk and counter-attacking at one point.

Soviet front line dispatches said Nazi Marshal Fedor Von Bock was hurling large numbers of tanks and infantry against the reinforced defenses of Marshal Semen Timoshenko.

"As a result of fierce battles, populated points are continually changing hands," a Red army bulletin said.

"We are fighting heavy days."

But the Russians acknowledged that the invaders had already launched a dangerous wedge into Soviet lines with the capture of Kupyansk, 70 miles southeast of Kharkov, and the German claimed further [illegible] capture of Izyum, 70 miles southwest of Kharkov.

This apparently meant that the Germans now controlled the whole triangular area between Kharkov, Izyum and Kupyansk.

July 13 Last Day To Register for August Primary

Marion residents who expect to vote in the August primary were reminded today by C. C. Ritzler, deputy clerk of the Marion county board of elections, that July 13 is the last day for those not properly registered to make themselves eligible to cast ballots.

All new residents not now registered with the board of elections must register before that date and those who have moved from one precinct to another must transfer at the office of the election board in the Marion Federal Savings & Loan Co. New voters who will reach the age of 21 before the November election are eligible to vote in the primary if they are properly registered, Mr. Ritzler said.

SCHOOL UNION MAKES DEMAND

School Board in Special Session Considers Letter of AFL Local.

In a special meeting at the city school administration building yesterday afternoon, members of the school board formulated a reply to a letter from the Marion Federation of Teachers, Local No. 715, which demanded that it be recognized as the bargaining agent for all classroom teachers.

The board concluded it was necessary to obtain the opinion of the city solicitor regarding its authority in the matter before any action is taken.

George Wilson, president of the newly organized teachers' union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate for teachers and teaching principals, appeared before the board at its regular meeting June 2 to make the initial request that the union be recognized as the bargaining agent for teachers.

The question raised at that time by the board was whether or not the union's committee would conflict with the Marion Education Association's salary committee. That question, which has not since been answered satisfactorily to the board, resulted in yesterday's decision to consult the city solicitor for an opinion on the board's authority.

GAS PRICE INCREASE APPROVED FOR EAST

2½ Cent Gallon Boost in Retail Price.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 27 — An increase of 2½ cents a gallon in the retail price of gasoline and a 2 cent a gallon for ordinary domestic fuel oils and kerosene was approved for the eastern seaboard today by the office of price administration.

The increase effective Monday, is expected to finance increased costs of transporting petroleum products into the gasoline rationing area.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, admitting that "price increases of this sort have a bad dislocating effect on the whole cost situation of industries operating under our ceiling," declared that it was necessary to pass on the price rise to consumers because of the lack of subsidy legislation.

"The office of price administration is keenly aware of the inequity of making consumers of petroleum products bear the entire cost of the submarine warfare against tanker movement along the east coast," Henderson asserted.

"It is my own feeling and one which I am sure is widely shared, that the higher cost of getting petroleum to the east coast resulting from enemy action is an appropriate charge against the public treasury, just as is the cost of the patrol boats with which we sink the submarines."

May Mine Scrap Rubber Buried in Stark County

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., June 27—Manager G. F. Durfee of Mats, Inc., told the Stark county scrap rubber committee that his firm paid $1,000 to have an estimated 2,000,000 pounds of low grade rubber buried three years ago because it was a fire hazard. Chairman J. C. McIntosh said the committee would consider Monday a proposal to employ power shovels and trucks to "mine" the scrap.

OPERATIONS TO EASE PRESSURE ON RUSSIANS

Joint Announcement on War Plans Made As Prime Minister Reaches London.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 27—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain declared in a joint statement today that "coming operations" of the United Nations will divert German strength from the attack on Russia.

"While exact plans, for obvious reasons, can not be disclosed," said the joint statement released simultaneously in Washington and London, "it can be said that the coming operations, which were discussed in the full as our Washington conference between ourselves and our respective military advisers, will divert German strength from the attack on Russia."

The statement also said it was hoped that as a result of other steps "planned" at the week of Roosevelt-Churchill conferences concluded Thursday, "the respective navies will further reduce the toll of merchant shipping."

Withholding the time and other details of what may come now, the statement declared the United Nations, as a result of the conferences, "have never been in such hearty and detailed agreement on plans for winning the war as they are today."

The two leaders applauded Russia's gallant resistance to the "main attack" being made by Germany and rejoiced in the "magnificent resistance" of the Chinese army.

They added that detailed discussions were held with military advisers of the United Nations on "methods to be adopted against Japan and the relief of China."

Calling attention to the fact that the two war leaders had met twice before—before and after the United States entered the war—the joint statement declared there was no doubt in the minds of Roosevelt and Churchill that the "overall picture is more favorable to victory than it was either in August or December of last year," the occasions of their two previous conferences, the first in the Atlantic on board warships and the second at the White House.

"We have taken full cognizance of our disadvantages as well as our advantages," the statement said. "We do not underrate the task.

"We have conducted our conferences with the full knowledge of the power and resourcefulness of our enemies.

"In the matter of the production of munitions of all kinds, the survey gives on the whole an optimistic picture. The previously planned monthly output has not reached the maximum but is fast approaching it on schedule.

"Because of the wide extension of the war to all parts of the world, transportation of the fighting forces, together with the transportation of munitions of war and supplies, still constitutes the major problem of the United Nations.

"While submarine warfare on the part of the axis continues to take heavy toll of cargo ships, the actual production of new tonnage is greatly increasing month by month. It is hoped that as a result of the steps planned at this conference the respective navies will further reduce the toll of merchant shipping.

"The United Nations have never been in such hearty and detailed agreement on plans for winning the war as they are today."

Churchill Returns To Face Parliament

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 27 — Prime Minister Winston Churchill came back to England today from his historic conferences with President Roosevelt and stepped from a trans-Atlantic plane into the most serious political crisis of his career.

He returned to a nation troubled by the serious setback to British forces in North Africa and the imminent Axis smash at Egypt. The long-held British stronghold at Tobruk fell while the prime minister was discussing war strategy with President Roosevelt and the capture of some 25,000 British troops there brought strong criticism of his conduct of the war.

Faces Vote Test

Facing him in the house of commons is an insurgent motion for a vote of "no confidence" in his direction of the war.

Political observers believe the prime minister will win a vote of confidence—as he was before—with some 20 votes cast against.

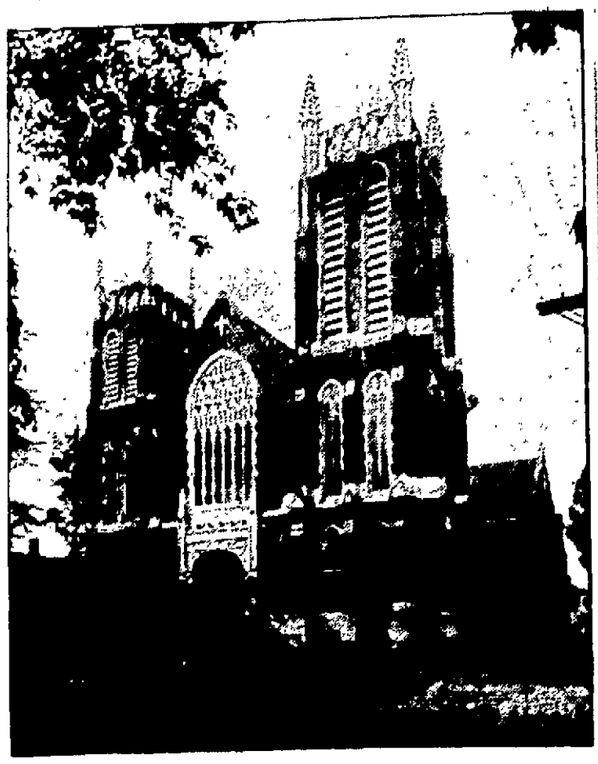
Lutheran Church To Burn Note in Service Sunday



MARION EMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH

* * *

A note-burning service at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow at the Emanuel Lutheran church will mark the liquidation of all debt on the church and parsonage. Ground was broken Sept. 6, 1916, for the church edifice and dedication services were held Sept. 8, 1918. On June 30, 1924, work was begun on the erection of a parsonage.

The building committee which undertook the responsibility of erecting the church included Andrew Baldauf, H. L. Albrecht, John Lust, G. A. Thibaut, Edward Evans, Jacob Lust, John Peuser, William H. Schreffler and Albert Fetter.

The building committee for the parsonage was composed of L. M. Rengert, Andrew Baldauf and George C. Schaadt Sr. The vestry supervising the erection of the parsonage included George Schaadt Sr., George Long Sr., Frank T. Campbell, J. J. Stiffler, C. Scott Gast, Albert Fetter, Frank J. Mautz, Henry Mautz, John Baldauf, Paul Fetter, Henry H. Dawson, Andrew Baldauf, John Peuser, John Loeffert Sr. and Rev. J. W. Schillinger.

J. Baldauf and Sons were contractors for the erection of the church and parsonage. J. W. Corbusier of Cleveland was the architect for the church and L. M. Rengert of Marion for the parsonage.

During the past four years improvements and repairs amounting to approximately $10,000 were made. These included the redecorating of the church and Sunday school parlors, new lighting fixtures in the church auditorium and church parlors, the remodeling and reconditioning of the church organ with the addition of chimes, new hardwood floor in the church parlors, remodeling of the church kitchen, automatic stokers, and the recent installation of the singing tower. A modern kitchen and new heating system were also installed in the parsonage.

During the note-burning ceremony the present vestry, which brought the debt liquidation drive to a successful close will stand before the chancel in a body. Members of the vestry are Cloyd N. Sautter, Harry W. Kull, Walter E. Axthelm, U. A. Nystrom, Jesse G. Lytle, Robert W. Byrd, William H. Ackerman Jr., George C. Schaadt Sr., Orion L. Anderson Sr., George F. Turner, F. Ray Geer, Carl T. Campbell, Ivan S. Graham, Stuart C. Shipman and Rev. M. E. Hollensen.

The junior choir under the direction of Mrs. Stuart C. Shipman will sing "Prayer Perfect" by Speaks and the senior choir under the direction of Homer E. Huffman will offer "Built on a Rock" by Christiansen and "Sanctus" by Gounod.

Rev. M. E. Hollensen will preach on the subject "All That Believe." He will be assisted by Rennix VanScoy of Marion, a senior at Capital university, who has filled the pulpit during the absence of Rev. Hollensen.

John Jenne, treasurer of the building fund, will burn the notes.

Divine Questions

A SERMONETTE

By REV. HENRY MAAG

Pastor, Prospect Street Methodist Church

* * *

JESUS began His first public appearance by asking questions. Questions have always been the key to the door of knowledge. The age of scientific advance began by men cross-examining nature and wringing from her practical answers. What is true of science and philosophy is equally true of religion. The seeking, inquiring soul is the one that advances along the road of spiritual achievement. There are three questions which the Scriptures record as having been put to man by God.

I—The first is a question found in Genesis put by God to Adam in the Garden of Eden. "And the Lord God called upon Adam, and said unto him: Where art thou?" This is the first question that comes to a man after some great calamity has befallen him. Adam had sinned. He had disobeyed God. He knew that he had sinned, that he was naked, and so he had tried to hide from the face of God. Adam is the symbol of all mankind.

In the fundamental things of life each man and woman knows what God's will is for him. The Ten Commandments are very simple. We often try to becloud the issues by camouflaging their violation with the stuff of our complex civilization, but at heart each of us realizes that he is guilty. We disobey God. We know we have sinned against Him, and we are ashamed; and like Adam and Eve we seek to hide from His accusing eye.

II—The second question is one put by God the Son. "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me?" This religion of the Nazarene was getting under his skin. He was a Jew of Jews, a Pharisee of Pharisees must not let it get by, it would not be converted. He replied for warrants of arrest speeds away to Damascus to stamp out many of Jesus' disciples. But as he neared Damascus, only to be faced with a blinding question: "Saul, Saul, why?" Today we, too, in our few bright moments of heart's yearning for God ask the question of God the Son: "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me?"

III—And the third question that of God the Holy Spirit is described so vividly, so dramatically and so mystically in the writing of Isaiah. "I heard the voice of God saying, whom shall I send, and who will go for us?"

Isaiah was a statesman, a diplomat and a pious Jew. Never before had he been in the Temple full of smoke, with angels with coals of fire. He heard the voice of God. God asked for a spokesman, for one in need of a man. And Isaiah heard the Spirit call out in the form of a question and answered that call: "Here I am, send me."

God the Father wants us to be where we are today, dedicated us to be the Sons of God and we, like the prodigal, like the lost sheep, have gone astray and like Adam, try so often to hide from God. And all the time God the Holy Spirit within us is calling us to come and follow Him, to go forth to represent Him in camp and field, in home and in market place. Will our answer be: "Here am I, send me."

Issue of War Production Speed Not Likely To Aid G. O. P., Poll Indicates

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 27—Will the war effort go better if the Republicans get power in Washington? As elections approach in the midst of a Republican

[illegible] conducted by the [illegible] the 48 states, [illegible] voters who think [illegible] would go faster [illegible] GOP are more than [illegible] those who think it [illegible] may be slowed. A [illegible] per saw it would make no [illegible] or are undecided about [illegible] matter how important an [illegible] production is likely to [illegible] voting votes this question was put to the people in the survey.

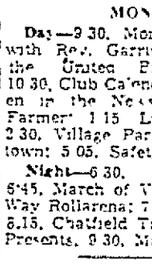
Which way to you think the government's war effort would go ahead faster—if the Republicans had more power in Washington or if the Republicans had less power in Washington?

Faster if GOP had more power	21%
Faster if G.O.P. had less power	31
Would make no difference	27
Undecided	21

More than four months remain before election day, but it seems clear at the present that if the Republicans are counting on making an issue out of charges of inefficient New Deal administration of the war effort, they will have anything but a sure-fire issue.

The G.O.P. used the argument that "we can do it better than the Democrats" in both the 1936 and 1940 presidential campaigns. While polls showed considerable public dissatisfaction with the New Deal on domestic issues in 1940 the war in Europe was largely responsible for Mr. Roosevelt's reelection.



Current poll results on the political situation emphasize clearly that the Republicans still lack an issue which will win for them a majority of the independent vote so necessary to victory.

If congressional elections were held today the Democrats would gain about 10 seats in the house, the most recent Institute poll shows.

LaRue and Mt. Gilead Operators Graduate

[illegible] as [illegible] operators have [illegible] Private George R. [illegible] of near Mt. Gilead, and [illegible] Edward M. Benson of [illegible] LaRue, who is with the 2nd [illegible] at Fort Benning, [illegible] graduation exercises of the [illegible] department of the [illegible] Force School at Fort [illegible]. The diplomas were [illegible] by Lt. Col. Leslie F. [illegible] department director. [illegible] Longacre is the son of [illegible] E. E. Longacre of R. R. 1, Mt. LaGuardia Advises 3-A Men To Join City Corps

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 27—Selective service registrants in the 3-A dependency deferred classification were advised today in letters signed by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia to report within five days for enrollment in the city patrol corps which guards places vital to the war effort.

"If you fail to apply for enrollment with the city patrol corps your defense status with the protective forces of the city will be reported to the local draft board," the letter added.

Selective headquarters said that the letters, written on stationery from the mayor's office, were being mailed by local boards with its permission but not ordered.

RUMORS RIFE ON SEACOAST

Reporter Hears Wild Tales; None Factual; German Subs Chief Topic.

By J. NORMAN LODGE
Associated Press Writer

NORFOLK, Va., June 27—Visit a seacoast town if you want to hear rumors—rumors that have spread from somewhat nearby, rumors that seemingly can't be kept down.

On a recent trip to the Hampton Roads district, for instance, this correspondent was told as gospel that [illegible] submarines of German manufacture were [illegible] aground at Ocean View, at Willoughby, Cape Henry, Lynnhaven Inlet and just off Virginia Beach.

"Did you actually see them?" I inquired.

"No, but so-and-so did."

On approaching so-and-so, I was told that he hadn't seen them but so-and-so had. And so on.

Norfolk Story

The same is true of the rumor currently going the rounds in Norfolk that a German submarine was forced to surface and when inspected its stores were found to include bread purchased in a Portsmouth bakery.

Then there was the German submarine commander who halted an American merchantman just off Morehead City and bringing the commander of the merchantman aboard the sub supposedly said:

"You must have a filthy bottom; you should have it scraped. You're one hour and 22 minutes late."

Inquiry of the captain of the merchantman elicited the information that he never had even seen a German submarine.

Then the rumor that seemingly is international in scope, for I heard it in London, too—to the effect that sailors captured in an Axis submarine had tickets from a local theater in their pockets.

How do these rumors spread? Perhaps this is one explanation—and this incident is true.

Sub at Hampton Roads.

A resident of the Hampton Roads area called a local newspaper and inquired about the submarine that was being towed through the roadstead. The paper had heard nothing of it. But newspapers spend many hours running down rumors because one of every hundred may bear some fruit.

So reporters were sent to various spots. One of them found a tow of logs being taken through the waters off Norfolk. Before this could be published the rumor had spread throughout the area, and every vantage point along the roadstead was lined with curious residents.

About a week ago off Virginia Beach a tanker was sunk. The incident was clearly visible from shore. Survivors were landed, and one body was taken into the coast guard station in full view of thousands.

This reporter taxied out from Norfolk and saw most of the action. Yet, within the hour many score people told me of the "battle" saying they had seen a submarine surface and shell the tanker, and one even tried to convince me one shell just missed the Cavalier hotel.

Tanker Struck Mine.

The truth was that the tanker had struck a mine and there is no proof yet that a submarine was within hundreds of miles of Virginia Beach.

Rumors like these keep officialdom in a state of frenzy. Naval officials probably would inform rumor-mongers for the duration if they had their way.

The best way to stop such silliness, they say, is to ask just one question of the person telling you these old-goose yarns:

"Did you actually see it happen?"

If the answer is "yes" communicate with either the army or the navy and give the name of the person who "actually" saw the incident.

If the answer is "no" be American and explain the damage that person is doing by spreading tall tales.

Data on Marion Listed in New Encyclopaedia

The new section of the Encyclopaedia Britannica includes a revised article regarding the city of Marion. The article, based on information supplied by the Marion Chamber of Commerce has the following to say regarding the city:

MARION, a city of Ohio, U.S.A., 44 mi. N. by W. of Columbus; the county seat of Marion county. It is on federal highways 23 and 30, and is served by the New York Central, the Erie, the Chesapeake and Ohio and Pennsylvania railways. Population in 1940 was 30,817. It is the trade centre of a rich farming district. There are many limestone quarries in the county. The principal products manufactured include power shovels, dredges, road rollers, tractors, castings, refrigerator units, soybean products, flour and conveying equipment. Large railroad shops and yards are located here. Marion was the home of former President Warren Gamaliel Harding from 1884 until his death in 1923. It was the scene of his "front-porch campaign" in 1920, and there he is buried. The city was laid out in 1821 and chartered in 1890.

WAR DAMAGE INSURANCE

Your standard fire insurance policy does not cover "for loss caused directly or indirectly by invasion, insurrection . . . or military or usurped power."

THE WAR DAMAGE CORPORATION was formed by the Federal Government to protect both real and personal property against loss by the perils of war or bombardment. The facilities of Insurance Companies and Agents are being utilized in the distribution of this War Damage Insurance. This arrangement constitutes a contribution to the prosecution of the war which both Companies and Agents gladly make on a non-profit basis.

TYPES OF PROPERTIES THAT MAY BE COVERED — Property at fixed location on land, livestock, aircraft, automobiles, registered mail and express shipments, money and securities.

EXTENT OF PROTECTION — Indemnity is provided against direct physical loss or damage by enemy attack, including any action taken by the military, naval or air forces of the United States in resisting enemy attack.

PAYMENT OF LOSS—Payment shall be made within 60 days after proof of loss is received by War Damage Corporation. Proof of loss must be filed within 60 days after the loss occurs.

CONDITIONS AS TO PREMIUM PAYMENTS — Cash, postal money order or check in full payment of premium must be given when application for insurance is completed.

COMMENCEMENT DATE OF POLICY—When the application, accompanied by payment, is received by the insurance company, not the agent with whom the insured has direct contact. No agent can bind this protection.

Give this ample study and consult your local Agent at an early date.

ACTION ON FAIR COMING SOON

Marion Co. Board To Consider Cancellation Question Tonight.

The question of cancelling the Marion county fair in compliance with a request by James B. Reman, director of defense transportation, will be considered tonight at a meeting of the county fair board.

The meeting will be held in the fair board office on South Main street at 8:30 p. m.

Attorney William K. Davis, fair board member and fair secretary, said the meeting probably would determine the action of the board members. Definite action, however, is likely to be postponed until Monday when a meeting of the Ohio Fair Managers association will be held in Columbus. The state meeting has been called to act on the Le Union request, the Associated Press reported in a dispatch from Columbus. The meeting will be in the De Hler-Wallick hotel at 1:30 p. m.

The executive board of the Ohio Fair Managers association called the meeting and Mrs. Don A. Detrick, secretary, said she expected at least 60 of the fairs to be represented despite the wheat harvest now occupying the attention of many fair board members.

Attorney Davis, who was inducted into the army last week at Fort Hayes, also said the question of naming someone to fill his position as secretary and board member would come up at the meeting tonight. Board members indicated an acting secretary would be named to continue fair plans already inaugurated by Davis, who will enter active army service July 5. He is home now on a post-induction furlough to wind up business affairs.

OHIO FARMERS SHIFT TO WAR FACTORIES

Assigning from Non-Essential Jobs Operates Smoothly.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 27—Shifting of Ohio farmers from non-essential jobs to war production work has been accomplished smoothly and with little disruption of normal business, Wade Hammond, Ohio director of the U. S. employment service, reported today.

Several problems remain to be worked out as expanding war factories need several thousand more workers at a time, but indications are that such calls will be met successfully, Hammond said.

He disclosed that 13,738 high school and college youths volunteered for summer farm work in the recent survey of all such schools in the state and declared that the survey helped the service not only in recruiting farm labor but in supplying war factories with learners.

Strawberry and celery fields provided paying jobs for hundreds of boys, Hammond said, and another large group will report next week for opening of the cherry picking season in the Lake Erie district.

Although farmers generally have not called for as much student help as was anticipated, Hammond said he expected wider use of school boys as the farm labor shortage becomes more pronounced in July and August.

The group will include Donald E. Young of Greenville, O., who has been located in Kenton the past three months assisting in the audit of Hardin county offices and services. He has been accepted as a volunteer officer candidate.

CRAWFORD CO. GRAND JURY INDICTS EIGHT

Bucyrus, Galion Men in Group; Two Bills Secret.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS June 27 — Eight bills of indictment were returned by the Crawford county grand jury Friday afternoon after being in session two days.

Two indictments were returned against Forrest Faile of Galion, one charging assault with intent to kill and the other unlawful threatening. The indictments arose from a charge filed by Mrs. Russell Baum of Galion, May 25. Russell Faile was also indicted on a charge of unlawful threatening as a result of the same affidavit which claims that the threatened William Faile, also a Galion resident.

An indictment charging cutting with intent to kill was returned against Garnett W. Reed of Galion. The affidavit filed by Morris R. Bower charged the defendant with cutting Wallace Osborn of Galion.

In a joint indictment Charles Smith and Norman Banks of Bucyrus, were charged with larceny. The two were alleged to have entered the home of Phillip Frost, north of Bucyrus, and to have stolen several miscellaneous articles.

Charles Brown was indicted for failure to provide for minor children.

Two indictments were secret.

No bills were returned against Erroll Struble, charged with operating a drug store without the services of a registered pharmacist; Paul M. Sheehe, charged with failure to provide, and Helen Schifer, forgery.

No date has been set for arraignment of prisoners.

HOUSING PROBLEM SOLVED IN EAST

Living Quarters Provided for 80,000 in Two Cities.

Housing accommodations for about 80,000 persons, approximately the combined normal populations of Newport News and Portsmouth, two of the three principal cities in that area, are being provided in the overcrowded Hampton Roads area of Virginia, under the war housing program of the Federal Public Housing Authority.

A total of 7,504 war housing units in that area are completed, 2,960 are now under way, and 16,740 others are about ready to be put under construction.

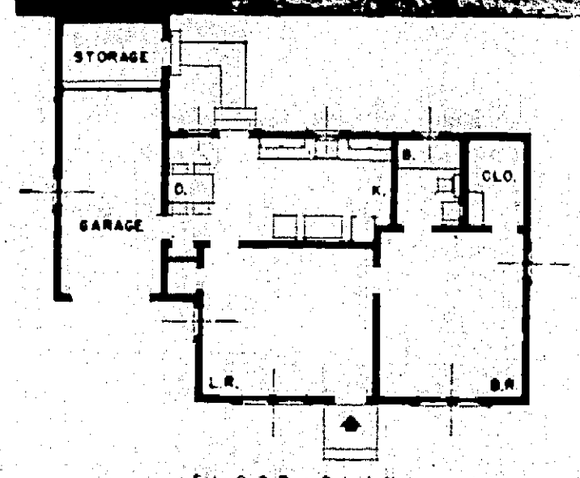
The thousands of workers and their families, drawn to the Hampton Roads locality to man the various war establishments, have created a housing problem of staggering proportions.

To meet the problem, new and unprecedented methods are being used. A San Francisco, Calif., firm has converted a former fertilizer plant at Norfolk into a fabricating factory which will turn out 50 complete homes a day. This firm will produce 5,000 homes for Portsmouth and Norfolk. More than 5,000 similar homes will go up in Newport News.

Dormitories are being built for single men. Two 250-unit dormitories have been completed, and three others with 1,500 units are under construction.

Meantime trailer camps are used as stopgap housing.

Well-Planned House of Minimum Cost



·FLOOR·PLAN·

Good planning and design produce minimum cost one-story houses of simple character. This small house of conventional design has a number of noteworthy features. The well-placed windows give ample light and at the same time conserve wall space for furniture. The kitchen and the bathroom are placed close to each other, making for economy of construction. The inside entrance to the garage is an unusual advantage for a house of this size and cost. Cross ventilation is secured throughout, and the entire plan is compact, efficient and economical.

PLUMBER ADVISES CARE OF FIXTURES

Scalding Water Helps Keep Sink Drains Open.

Sink drains should be kept clean by pouring scalding water down the drain once a day. Greasy water should never be poured down the kitchen drain unless there is a grease interceptor. Ravelled or frayed dish or wash cloths should not be used because lint tends to clog drains.

These were some of the suggestions offered by Howard B. Reed of Jackson, secretary-treasurer of the Michigan Association of Master Plumbers, in Detroit last week for the fiftieth anniversary of the association.

"Don't pour lye down a drain," Reed said. "Lye may take the finish off the fixture and clog the trap. When lye comes in contact with grease it forms a hard soap which can clog a pipe.

"Protect the bright surface of chromium and nickel plumbing fittings by frequent wiping with a damp cloth. Do not use harsh abrasives.

"Do not use strong cleaning solutions or gritty abrasives to clean plumbing fixtures. Get the advice of a master plumber on the kind of cleaners you may use with safety.

"Have all plumbing repair and maintenance work done under the direction of an experienced master plumber. Now as never before good workmanship is important both for economy and conservation of metal."

REMOVING CALCIMINE

Calcimine can generally be removed from a plaster wall by soaking with warm water. Should this prove difficult, one of the new wallpaper removers—which contains a wetting agent, penetrates quickly and will not affect finished woodwork — may be added to the water.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES
O. S. U. Extension Floriculturist.

Q.: I have an American Beauty climbing rose, a big thing. I should like to separate it. Would you tell me how and when to do this? Also I should like to get starts for my friends. How can I get these? Mrs. P. B., Cincinnati.

A.: It is very seldom that one can separate climbing roses. If this is done, late November or early December would be the best time. Although many of the small flowered climbing roses grow very satisfactorily on their own roots, the larger-flowered climbing roses are best budded on some hardy rose stock. This is not practical for the average home gardener. For most climbing roses if you will take cuttings six to eight inches long in late November and plant them out in a well drained spot in the garden with only an inch projecting above the ground, you may get some of them to root and grow. It will be necessary to mulch them with six inches to one foot of straw or leaves over the first winter. May I suggest that you ask your local county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on garden roses.

Q.: Will you kindly give me some information about my cut-leaf birch trees? The white bark is covered with large brown spots and small holes made by some sort of an insect. The leaves are dry and hanging down like there is no life in them. The trees are from 12 to 15 years old. Miss A. S., Cincinnati.

A.: As near as I can tell from your description, your white birch is infested with the bronze birch borer. This usually causes the dying of the top of the tree first, followed later by the rest of the tree. There is nothing you can do to prevent it or control the insect after it attacks the trees.

Q.: I am sending you a specimen of a twig from an oak tree. This tree is about 15 years old and for the last two years twigs and small branches have wilted and fallen off. Today I discovered that every broken branch contains a worm and that the small twigs have been hollowed out. Can you tell me, please, with what I can have this oak sprayed to prevent further infestation?

A.: The oak-twig pruner is a small insect that bores through the center of the twigs of oak and hickory. These insects winter over in the dead twigs that have fallen to the ground. The adults emerge next spring and the whole process starts over again. There is no spray which will in any way control them. The only method of control is to collect and burn the twigs as they fall.

Peru has just placed 11,800 acres of government irrigated land on sale for settlement.

FIRE PROTECTION IMPROVEMENT URGED

The time to prepare against the possibilities of air raids is now—not when enemy bombers are overhead.

An incendiary bomb does not necessarily have to strike a house to set it on fire. Conflagrations that may wipe out a whole neighborhood may get under way when the fire is not immediately localized, or where rows of inflammable roof tops feed the traveling flames.

As protection against fires started nearby, home owners should reroof with some fire-resistant material. Among the materials for such purpose are asphalt shingles, and asphalt roll roofing.

The new shingles can be laid right over the old roof to give extra thickness as well as fire protection for the roof deck and lower floors.

Even in communities where air-raids and the resultant dangers from incendiary bombs are not so great, fire-resistant roofing acts as a safeguard against conflagrations resulting from ordinary causes.

TERMITE DAMAGE SERIOUS PROBLEM

Few people are able to detect termite infestation until much damage has been done, says Emery T. Smith of the Buckeye Terminix Co. During the Spring months termite swarmers, known as "Flying Ants" emerge from the colony to establish new nests.

This indicates that thousands of destructive workers have been left behind to continue their damaging effects. Smith offers detailed information and free inspection by Phoneing Mansfield, Dial 1538-1, representative office of Buckeye Terminex Co., of Columbus, Ohio.

Don't Open Till November

FOR all practical purposes the tax bill prepared by the house ways and means committee calls for 7 billion dollars, about two-thirds of the amount the treasury said it hoped the bill would raise. The missing third will have to be borrowed. The total shortage, expected to reach 10 billion dollars, will have to be borrowed. It must be borne in mind that the new tax bill is merely for additional revenue; all the old taxes are still in force.

There is a very serious question about the government's ability to borrow 40 billion dollars—probably more because revenue estimates always are too high and deficit estimates too low. Anything that would reduce the borrowing total and increase the revenue total would be a contribution to financial stability. There is no argument on the point. There is only politics.

All reliable reports from Washington say that congressmen are aware of two things—the elections next November and the cost of the war. Greater of these is the elections. On the tried and true theory that the way to get elected is to seem to give voters more for less, political candidates are willing to hoist the cost of the war into the upteen billions (220 at last count) but are wholly unwilling to remind voters that all this must be paid for.

Mr. Churchill's Next Move

WHAT appears to Americans to be an unfair attack on Prime Minister Churchill for British failure in Libya is only the normal operation of parliamentary government, of course. The ultimate effect is bound to be salutary, on the assumption that almost anything in Britain's war management would be better than what it has been getting.

It is the theory of parliamentary government, fully accepted by Mr. Churchill himself, that the head of the government and his cabinet shall be held responsible for what goes on. That is how Mr. Churchill got to be prime minister—when Mr. Chamberlain made a dismal failure.

It is the parliamentary method of translating popular opinion into political action. Theoretically, the United States accomplishes the same thing by recurrent elections, though actually the British plan is a far greater concession to popular government than would be possible here. President Roosevelt, for instance, could make amends for the lack of preparation to face Japan's attack Dec. 7 by dismissing a handful of professional militarists. Mr. Churchill under the same circumstances would have been forced to submit his government to a vote of confidence, in addition to ordering changes in personnel.

His next move, in fact, will be that very thing—a vote of confidence and a reorganization of personnel. Perhaps nothing will be gained; the United Nations may not be able to find a Rommel in a carload of generals. But their only chance is to keep looking, and they shouldn't forget that Adolf Hitler discarded a lot of them too before he found the handful who have carried out his ambitious strategy.

Richest Nation on Earth

DONALD M. Nelson's hint that scrap iron and steel needed for war production may have to be obtained in the form of fences, ornamental iron work and statuary will sharpen the war focus of Americans who remember what they thought when they heard that Germany was doing the same thing years ago.

This richest nation on earth is scrounging desperately for rubber, too. It has rationed sugar. In the near future it will begin to conserve fats, another acute shortage in Germany during the years when the Nazis were preparing for war. If anyone thought its wealth would keep the United States from feeling the pinch of war, these growing shortages should dispel the illusion.

There is no country wealthy enough to fight a modern war without the most extreme sacrifices. That was proved beyond doubt in World war I, which left all participants with a sense of waste and futility. It will be proved again in World war II—perhaps conclusively this time.

Undress Becomes Relative

THAT hardy hot weather topic of long standing, the scanty beach suit, has added a new angle, or perhaps a curve. Mayor LaGuardia of New York City, confronted with protests from property owners, has handed down an opinion that within 200 feet of a bathing beach a bathing suit is permissible. Further than that, it is, well, er, ahem offensive. The mayor recommends that in such cases police should be notified and should "fan" violators all the way to the nearest station house.

It is easy to imagine as years go on and one thing leads to another that the 200 feet might be extended to 2,000 and so on until at long last, when the human eye has learned not to blink, a person attired as though for bathing might roam at large. It is easy to imagine this because already young women and some not so young—and even some young men—may be seen strolling, riding bicycles, playing tennis and just idling away the hours in garments that a few years ago would have suggested an emergency and produced offers of a bathrobe only a short time ago. And the garments have nothing whatever to do with bathing, not even nominally. They're just garments.

News Behind the News

Mallon Looks at Federal Financing With Debt of Three Hundred Billion Dollars.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 27 — The treasury [illegible] by congress [illegible] $300,000,000,000 [illegible] based on post-war [illegible] at the conclusion of World War II.

It is difficult to explain the size of $300,000,000,000 because such an amount has never before been talked of, even in one lump sum. Perhaps the best way to explain its enormity is that it represents about ten years of labor for every wage earner in this country.

We had 43,017,000 earning units last year, made up of 32,097,000 farmers and 10,950,000 single employed persons. Their average earnings were $2,503. The share of each one in the war appropriations made by congress so far would be more than twice as much, roughly $4,800.

What this will mean to the lives of citizens is beginning to be apparent as the size of the problem becomes clearer. Some few congressmen, debating the historic, unprecedented $42,000,000,000 army appropriation, but the other day suggested it might mean bankruptcy if expenditures kept piling up, but they apparently had not stopped to figure the real probabilities.

200 Billion Debt

Obviously we are going to have a federal debt of at least $200,000,000,000 at the end of this war, five times the size of the feared debt limit reached in nine years of new deal pending before we entered upon war preparations.

That will be a permanent obligation upon which the treasury will have to pay annual interest. The average interest rate now is 2.35 per cent and before the war the average was 2.4 per cent. (During the first World war it was 4.2 per cent.)

The treasury, while financing these new vast sums, is at the same time hammering the interest rate down. Some expect to get it down to around 2 per cent before the war is over.

If they do, and the entire war debt is no more than $200,000,000,000, the treasury will have to tax the people $1,000,000,000 a year after this war merely to pay interest charges — fixed charges, not including any actual cost of government operation.

If government costs run around $8,000,000,000 as they have been running, the treasury will have to raise $13,000,000,000 a year from the people to keep going.

There are two ways to handle that. One is by inflation, which is a government's way of going into bankruptcy.

Cheapening the value of dollars reduces the cost of its debts and accomplishes a washout of all values. That need not be done this time if the nation can be kept on a sufficiently high level of prosperity to enable the treasury to drain around $13,000,000,000 a year in taxes.

Collect 24 Billions

It is collecting this coming year about $24,000,000,000. If it continued these confiscatory rates after the war (which of course is impossible because you cannot run a profits system without profits) it could use all of $10,000,000,000 a year for debt retirement and pay off the debt in 20 years.

Certainly these figures show:

(1)—A national prosperity income of at least $100,000,000,000 a year will have to be maintained after the war to support the kind of debt and government we are in.

(2)—Vast post-war peace expenditures such as financing the industrialization of farming nations with our public funds or a quart of milk a day for the citizens of the world, cannot be undertaken with any reasonable expectation of maintaining government financing.

In other words, we would work ourselves out by careful and successful planning, but we cannot afford to throw money around the world.

Some authorities even ask if the treasury can raise so much money to run the war. That will be the easiest part of it. Little ingenuity is ever required to run up debt. Paying is generally the troublesome part.

Obviously, such vast sums are required that most of the war debt will have to be taken by banks and insurance companies. Commercial banks and federal reserve banks will get the bulk of it, and the government can practically force them to take any interest rate it considers likely to be enough to keep their doors open.

For instance, this coming fiscal year $77,000,000,000 is being spent and only $24,000,000,000 is being raised by taxes, another $10,000,000,000 will come from sale of bonds to savings banks, insurance companies, government trust funds etc. That leaves $43,000,000,000 to be raised by war bonds.

At present the treasury is selling bonds at a rate of about $5,000,000,000 a year. Mr. Morgenthau expects to bring this up to $12,000,000,000 by his new super drive. If he does the commercial banks will have to take the rest, about $31,000,000,000.

Even a compulsory bond buying program would not change this situation materially. The most that could be expected from it is $20,000,000,000 which would leave the commercial banks to absorb $23,000,000,000.

Clearly the banks must take between one-third and two-fifths of the whole expenditure, and that percentage will rise. They have no money themselves, except the peoples' money deposited with them.

Figures may be boring to the average individual but these kinds of figures need his attention, because they involve the sweat of his brow, as well as the economic and political future of this country.

SO RED, THE ROSE!

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Monday, June 27, 1932.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, leading aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination, telegraphed his supporters at the national convention in Chicago to cease their efforts to abrogate the two-thirds convention rule. He indicated he was confident of nomination without resorting to a change in the long-observed rule in the Democratic party. James A. Farley, the Roosevelt campaign director, said the action was taken in the interests of harmony and not because Mr. Roosevelt had swerved his opinion that the two-thirds rule was undemocratic.

A military funeral to take place Wednesday in the First Presbyterian church was arranged for Dr. James W. McMurray, whose death had occurred at City hospital Sunday. The services were to be in charge of Bird-McGinnis Post of the American Legion. Dr. McMurray died at the age of 64.

A series of memorial stamps honoring the memory of Col. William Crawford was proposed by Congressman Grant E. Mouser in a resolution introduced in the house of representatives. Colonel Crawford was the distinguished American soldier who was captured by a band of Delaware Indians and burned at the stake at a location in what is now Wyandot county.

Mrs. R. C. Dague and daughter Mildred Jeanne of Toledo were visiting Mrs. Dague's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Baker of East Center street.

The Marion Association of University Women closed its season with a house picnic at the home of Miss Dorothy Strelitz on Hill street.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, June 27, 1922.

Forty American citizens and property valued at $250,000 owned by the Carter Oil Co. were held for ransom near Tampico, Mexico, by the Mexican general, Gonzade, the U. S. state department was advised.

An administration program for putting the American farmer "back on his feet" was to be discussed at a White House dinner Thursday night. A dispatch from Washington said President Harding, who was to have leaders of farm organizations and high officials of the government as his guests, hoped to find a panacea for farmers' ills, and to meet the demands of agricultural interests across the conference table. The dinner was to be the third of a series given for leaders of various industries, steel and railway men having already been entertained at the White House.

A block of five per cent Harding Highway bonds amounting to $105,000 was sold by the county commissioners to a Detroit firm of bond buyers at their bid of par accrued interest and a premium of $714. The bonds were issued to pay on the cost of constructing the Harding highway in Marion county.

Mrs. Barney Buettin and daughter Maxine of Edwards street and Miss Audrey Wertz of Miami street were spending the week in Akron visiting Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schmidt.

Louis Goldberg of New York City, former resident of Marion, arrived for a week's visit with friends here.

Mrs. Florence Maldaby of Buffalo arrived to spend the summer with her sister, Mrs. Laura Bathell of Pearl street.

ABOARD STEAMER ANATOLE SEROV ON THE VOLGA RIVER—The Volga, like other great rivers of the world, has a definite personality, and the best time to get acquainted with it is at dawn.

It was when the first golden rays of the sun slanted like lances over the purple hills that our steamer gave three lusty toots and chugged away from Kuibyshev.

Taking a 1,621-mile trip in Russia in wartime has aspects of camping out. You take lots of food along, for the dining room is open for only one meal a day.

The Anatole Serov is a double decker, carrying few passengers but lots of freight.

Dawn is a good time for breakfast and Russia slipping by furnishes perfect atmosphere. Quaint villages stand out boldly in black and green. Great limestone hills speck like men working like ants extracting the limestone. Then a bridge.

"Please, everyone inside," shouts one of the women operating the boat as we approach the bridge. "We take no chances there's a war on."

The first important city is Syzran where women from the Anatole Serov join new stevedores, carrying in slings on their backs everything from machinery to cereals.

Tears At Parting

From a high bank below the city comes long, soft, heart-rending sobs as women throw down to see their husbands off to the army. The sobbing of 200 women is a terrible sound.

The New Hoover-Gibson Book Touches Some Pertinent Problems in Peace Making.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN THEIR book, "The Problems of Lasting Peace," Mr. Hoover and Mr. Gibson have done what earnest men must do if they know enough of these problems to understand how difficult they are. They have raised more questions than they pretend to be able to answer. Thus the first two parts of the Hoover-Gibson book are a memorandum of some of the things that must be taken into account in preparing for peace and the third part is a suggestive, yet a tentative and very elementary discussion of the armistice and peace.

The great value of this third part is that it shows that Messrs. Hoover and Gibson have come independently to practical conclusions which are essentially the same as those on which the United Nations are now acting. The defect of this third part is that it seems to have been written without taking into account, perhaps even without close knowledge of, the constructive diplomacy of the past four months.

The period opened with the signing on Feb. 23, 1942, of an agreement with Great Britain by which the lend-lease machinery was set up to become, as the President has just told congress, "the first of our concrete steps in the direction of affirmative post-war construction." Similar agreements were signed with China on June 2 and with the Soviet Union on June 11, and they are being offered to our other allies. The spirit and purpose of these agreements is, it would seem, wholly consistent with what Messrs. Hoover and Gibson advocate in the discussion which begins on page 204 of their book. But what they write there would have gained in actuality if they had discussed what is actually being done.

Important Negotiations

During the same period there have taken place the extremely important diplomatic negotiations which are marked by Mr. Sumner Welles's two speeches, by the declarations of war with Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary, by the Anglo-Soviet alliance and the Molotov visit. Here we see information the decision to have a rather long policed armistice, during which, by doing justice and by providing for relief and rehabilitation, the conditions and

Race Horses

Hollywood ans Keep Them [illegible] Dickens of It: Some of The Caught the Bug.

By DAMON RUNYON

WHEN horse racing came back to C[illegible] a few years ago many members [illegible] picture colony rushed into the [illegible] as horse owners. It was really quite a [illegible] Actors, directors, producers, executives bought steeds and selected [illegible] so pictured quite a flavor of [illegible] spirit of kings in the cinema capital. [illegible] went to the annual horse market at Santa Anita and paid fancy prices for stock imported mags from South America and [illegible] where. A few even went in for breeding up farms in this locality and stocking them with mares and stallions.

The popularity of the racing game [illegible] formula and the success of some of the C[illegible] studios suggested a return to the racing breeding glory of the days of Baldwin, Hearst and Spreckels. Well, this may yet [illegible] of course, though the suspension of the tracks because of the war has naturally [illegible] some of the enthusiasm for racing. [illegible] before this game about many of the movie [illegible] were already losing much of their zest for [illegible] participation in the game, having discovered that it involves something more than buying horses.

THEY discovered that it is a most expensive proposition and that it is indeed a rich man's racket, which any veteran of racing could have told them in advance.

Those who talked breeding as well as racing learned that this is something that requires not only money but years of effort and patience, and that it entails bitter disappointments. As a result, the ones who took it up as a fad dropped out.

Only a few of the motion picture colony retain their interest in breeding and [illegible] limited number is a gentleman whose enthusiasm for that end of the racing business [illegible] be a considerable factor in restoring California the breeding fame of the time of [illegible] of Norfolk, Re El, Santa Anita, Rancho Tournament, Ormonde and all the other California sires of bygone years. This gentleman is Louis B. Mayer, chief of Metro Goldwyn Mayer.

His concern in breeding horses is, [illegible] enough, a matter of comparatively recent observation. Most breeders are that way almost from childhood. Mayer went into the game because he thought it might afford him [illegible] from business cares. He started by reading [illegible] horses but the moment he learned something about breeding that became his greatest [illegible] He knew nothing whatever about racing [illegible] in the beginning. He made mistakes, [illegible] but he quickly caught on. He made a profound study of breeding and when he went into it [illegible] and it was with the best broodmares that money could buy, bred to the best stallions [illegible] that basis a man cannot go far wrong.

TODAY he is as familiar with blood [illegible] as a native of the Blue Grass. He has [illegible] up a big horse farm of 500 acres in a beautiful valley about nine miles from Riverside [illegible] has nearly 200 horses, including 40 in training. At the head of his stud is a giant stallion [illegible] Beau Pere imported from Australia where [illegible] was a great race horse and sire. Beau Pere [illegible] weighs over 1,500 pounds and is one of the biggest stallions of his breed in the United States.

Mayer also has imported Hunters Tabou and Alabai. The pride of his establishment is a yearling colt by Man o' War out of La France, dam of Johnstown and other great race horses. Mayer paid $17,000 for La France, though she is rather an elderly mare. He originally leased Beau Pere but has since bought him outright and charges a fee of $2,500. Some neighbors who wish to breed mares to the big fellow.

Mayer also has foals by the English horse [illegible] and Blenheim II running in his pastures. His farm is the last word in innovations for a racing establishment. I thought the [illegible] somewhat unpretentious but a stallion [illegible] with a folding table intrigued me, and [illegible] when I learned that it was for the [illegible] games with which the master of Mayerling diverts himself on the week-end journey [illegible] 70 odd miles each way between the studio [illegible] premises and the studio.

Elmer Davis and the News

In spite of all that has been written [illegible] doubt if the reading public, as a whole, is excited over the appointment of Elmer Davis [illegible] chief of the office of war information.

If it isn't, it's one of those mistakes democracies sometimes make. There [illegible] a man come to Washington since the war started who has had such wholehearted [illegible] —in advance—as Elmer Davis. It has [illegible] his broad task to give the public all of [illegible] clearly interpreted, which won't serve us by providing information to the [illegible] will be because there is something [illegible] wrong with our information system [illegible] necessarily with Mr. Davis.

The press relations battle in our [illegible] is a four-cornered fight. The people, [illegible] all are entitled to the first say, have [illegible] No. 1 complaint that they are not being informed; that much information is [illegible] and that too much of it is delayed.

There is a second group, centered [illegible] but not exclusively there, which says [illegible] the present setup is costly, inept, [illegible] principally with grinding its own axes.

A third faction in the battle royal [illegible] the public should be fed only [illegible] should be told only what is good for [illegible] light of our war effort and that all [illegible] tions agencies should be coordinated [illegible] in mind.

The fourth battalion is composed of [illegible] "ins" and their supporters and some [illegible] sadly enough, would be willing to [illegible] charge to prove their present setup [illegible] most effective.

Mr. Davis enters the arena a topic [illegible] ire with all but the last group and [illegible] think the news should be buttered on [illegible] before it's handed over for public [illegible] Davis, in his journalistic endeavors [illegible] ported on the radio, has proved [illegible] lens to the tougher school which [illegible] the American people can take it—[illegible] the grub.

He's only definite and conclusive [illegible] opposites since his appointment [illegible] no pains to give the public "news [illegible] clearly interpreted."

His powers, laid down by the [illegible] the executive order appointing him [illegible] OWI, are broad enough in [illegible] him to do exactly as he desires.

QUALIFY 7th DISTRICT CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

Union Co. Election Officials On Controlling Committee.

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., June 27 — Capt. George H. Smith of Spring Valley, now serving with the air corps at Miami Beach, Fla., was qualified today as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congressman from the Seventh Ohio district.

Friends said army duties would prevent him from campaigning.

The district controlling committee, composed of election board chairmen and clerks from Champaign, Clark, Clinton, Fayette, Greene, Logan, Madison, Union and Warren counties, voted last night to place Smith's name on the ballot in the August primary.

The committee ruled that his candidacy petitions were qualified.

Smith's candidacy was questioned by Carl Ehl of Springfield, also a Democratic candidate for the nomination, on the grounds his petitions were circulated before the declaration of candidacy was attached to them.

In addition to this, the board yesterday granted the request of the custodians of Marion schools that their salary increases be paid the 1st of June instead of the last of July.

An increase of $25 for the last school year, to be added to the last pay check was voted to all school employes at the last meeting of the board.

J. D. Terrance, clerk of the board, suggested that the board consider the advisability of subscribing to the war damage protection plan for insurance on city school buildings in the event damage through war activity.

Next Week Also Fateful One for Hitler's Legions

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

One can't quarrel with the prediction by London military experts that the next week is fair to be one of the most critical of the war for the allies, though, personally, I should go further, and say that it also will be one of the most ...ul to the axis.

The consensus of military observers is that Hitler must win this year or not at all. His correlated offensives against the British in Egypt and the Reds at the gateway to the Caucasus represent the beginning of a mighty effort to drive a wedge which will give him victory before winter again brings icy fetters to the Soviet front.

Another week won't see the end of the great battles which are swelling but the speeding events of the immediate future are likely to silhouette the climax of Hitler's attempt to dominate the world. The Nazi fuehrer right now either is building himself a pyramid of triumph, or he is digging his own grave which about the time the first snows sweep the Russian steppes will be ready and waiting for the allies to push him in. He may still play Hamlet for a bit after that, but his number will be up.

But here it is important to note that while we can see the meaning of this historic moment, there is no assurance (or so it seems to me) that the present offensives will continue to be the channels through which our destiny will flow. The allies must be prepared for a lightning change of tactics by Hitler if things don't go well with his scheme of clamping a great pair of pincers on Egypt from the east and from the west.

If Field Marshal Rommel's sensational drive should bog down, or if Field Marshal Von Bock should find the going too hard in Russia, we may expect Hitler to shift to a different field.

He has only about four months left in which to turn the trick.

Even if things go well for the Germans on the Russian front, it should cause no surprise if Hitler suddenly lashed out at Syria with an attempt to invade that country by air and secure a base from which to strike at the allies both in Egypt and in the countries to the east. Such a move would bolster the operations of both Rommel and Bock and would create a fresh emergency for the allies. Certainly if the Russian front holds, a Nazi attack on Syria would be a logical development.

Strikers Win Pay For Blackout Loss of Time

By The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich., June 27 — Their demand for blackout pay granted, 11,000 workers in four plants of the Yellow Truck & Coach Co. agreed to return to their jobs today after staging a one-day unauthorized strike.

Under an agreement reached yesterday and later ratified by the workers, company officials said employes would be paid for 20 minutes of time lost during a practice blackout Wednesday night and a 15-minute blackout May 24. The company also consented to open negotiations Monday with the United Automobile Workers (CIO) on a new contract involving wage adjustments and other grievances.

Union leaders, in return, promised disciplinary action.

ENEMY OBJECTIVES HIT IN RAF NIGHT FLIGHT

Bombers Lay Mines; No Big Raids Reported.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 27 — British fighter aircraft swept over occupied territory and attacked enemy shipping and railway objectives last night, the air ministry said today, but most of the air bombers stayed at home.

Some bombers were sent out to lay mines in enemy waters, but there were no reports of raids such as the previous night's 1,000-plane attack against Bremen where fires raged for hours.

German bombers attacked the east Anglian city of Norwich briefly last night and left fires in residential and shopping areas, the air ministry announced today. Observers expressed belief the attack was in retaliation for the RAF's Bremen raid.

"Some casualties were caused including a small number of people killed," the air ministry said.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Coxe

CHAPTER NINE

Bad News

SOMETHING ran swiftly along Joyce's nerves and left them cold and tingling. She put her hand on Della's, and said, quickly: "But what did you do?"

"I jumped up and spilled my drink. I certainly didn't want to be found alone with Perry Clarke. He must have been a little upset too. He hurried me into a hall.

"'You can wait here if you like,' he said I told him that I'd come back. Just turn the knocking started again, and so he said there was a door in the kitchen and I could go down the backstairs. 'And be sure you make it quiet,' he said."

Della pressed Joyce's hand. "He went back to the living room and closed the door I stood there a moment—the hall was lighted—and noticed that there were two rooms opposite each other. One was a bedroom."

"Della!" Joyce caught her breath. "You didn't—"

"I did,' Della said "The moment I thought of it I knew I'd do it. I was stiff with fright and yet I couldn't help it. No one could hear me, and something told me I'd have time....Well, there were two bags in the closet and the first one I opened held two envelopes. One was thick and bulky and I opened the flap. It was filled with money — or bonds or stock of some kind—and lots of it Well, I knew that couldn't be what Ward wanted so I put it back and picked up the other one. When I saw what was in it, I took it."

Joyce leaned back, unable to summon any further capacity for surprise.

"All right," the said. "What was in it?"

"Wait until I tell you the rest." Della said "I went back in the hall—I could hear voices but I couldn't hear what was said—and tiptoed through the kitchen and out the back door. I was actually shaking I was so excited, and I kept stumbling and feeling my way along in the darkness. Finally I got outside, but it was just as dark there, although I could see a street light at the end of the alley I hurried back to the corner and started across the street in front of the apartment house where I'd parked And then, just before I'd reached my car I saw Ward's coupe. It was three or four cars behind me and I wasn't positive at first so I stepped out in the street and walked up to it and made sure."

What To Do?

Somewhere down on the street, Joyce heard a car door slam, the sound of a motor in rapid acceleration; then everything was quiet again except the pounding of her heart. Aware at last that Della was waiting for her reaction, she made the necessary adjustments and found her voice.

"It was Ward then who knocked?"

"It must have been," Della said. "That's why I came straight here. At first I was going to wait for him and then I decided I'd better not. Perry Clarke is bound to know what happened to the envelope I suppose he could have me arrested if he wanted to, couldn't he? After all, I did steal it."

"What about Ward?" Joyce asked

"How do you mean?" Della said. "It'll be all right, won't it? He probably went up there to get the envelope, and now it's safe and can't hurt him. Either he'll find out it's been stolen or he won't and in any case—" She hesitated, the excitement dying in her.

"Only—I don't know what to do about it. Will you keep it for me, in case the police do come?"

"I don't imagine they will," Joyce said. "Perhaps we'd better look at it."

Della went to her coat and produced the envelope. Joyce took out four pieces of paper. Two of them were newspaper clippings printed in Spanish, one of them a two column story with a picture of Ward near the top. The other two, she saw at once, had nothing to do with Ward, but concerned Perry Clarke. The first was the photostatic copy of a marriage certificate, a French document dated in November 1937 and stating that Hestor and Perry Clarke had been married in Paris; the second was a copy of a divroce, also issued in Paris, and bearing the date of August 1938.

"I guess what I did was pretty awful," Della said.

"Mad is the word," Joyce said, "and even that's an understatement." She gave her attention to the clippings. "Can you read Spanish?"

"Some."

"Do you know what these say?"

"Well—not really. I saw Ward's picture— and the headline. I'm not sure I want to know. I mean" —she paused, eyes anxious and disturbed — "do you think I should, Joyce? Oh, I don't know what to do"

The Call

Joyce realized what she meant. She had a smattering of Spanish, enough to know that the headline of one clipping said something about an American being arrested in a jewel theft, that the other announced Ward Allen had been released in $2500 bail.

"Should I just seal the envelope and mail it to Ward?" Della said. "And not let him know where it came from? Or should I tell him everything and let him know it doesn't matter to me?"

Joyce had been reading as the girl spoke, and from what she could gather from her sketchy translation it seemed that Ward had been the guest of a Countess de Ferani at a small party, which had lasted most of the night, accompanied by much drinking. Upon awakening later in the day the Countess had discovered the loss of a pearl necklace and a valuable bracelet which had been found subsequently in Ward Allen's rooms..

She looked at Della, wondering how much the girl knew, and just how she should advise her. She was saved from making a decision by the ringing of the telephone, and returned the papers to the envelope before she answered.

It was Kent.

"You in bed?" he asked. She told him no and he said: "Well, don't wait up for me, I may be very late."

"Oh," Joyce said. "All right, dear. Something special?"

"Murder. I ran into it on my way home." There was a moment of silence. "Maybe I should tell you. It's Perry Clarke."

Something cold stabbed at Joyce and her throat froze. She looked at Della. The girl was watching her and slipping into her coat, her smile mildly curious. Joyce turned away, sick with horror and dismay, the growing silence piling up on her in heavy, stifling layers.

"Hey," Kent's voice said. "You there?"

"Yes." She found her voice and strove to discipline it. "You mean he—"

"Shot twice," Kent said. "And not so very long ago. I'll tell you all when I see you. 'Bye."

Joyce hung up slowly, summoning every resource so that she might face Della calmly.

Vacations

IT'S all over now, all we have to do is sit on the sidelines, and watch the rest of the gang take their vacations And who can tell why everybody else's two weeks seem so much longer by miles than ours. We would be applauded by those gentlemen who are acquiring furrowed brows because of transportation problems, could they know of our short haul vacation, but after all homemade icecream made in an old-fashioned freezer and thumbing one's nose at the alarm clock come 7 a. m. are good substitutes for most anything in vacation catalogue.

Glamour

THE trio of youngsters trailed into church, gazed about in quest of a pew roomy enough for them to sit together. To their disappointment the only available seat would hold but two and reluctantly the third lad took the pew ahead. Apparently occupied with his prayers, his face was as long as the much-quoted fiddle. But it didn't stay that way. He was right up in the king row when a U. S. soldier walked in and knelt beside him. His face was radiant as he took time out from admiring the soldier to beam at his companions. It's our guess if the soldier ever gets to be a general he never will receive more genuine, honest-to-goodness admiration, and if the lad ever finds himself tops in his chosen field the moment will not hold more glory for him than sitting beside the man in uniform.

Glass

WE'RE admiring no end the delicate and oh, so lovely flower yoke which arrived at our desk recently. It was just like Christmas opening the huge carton and lifting out the delicate bits of glassware. And what, says you, is a flower yoke—well so did we. This particular yoke has two arms planted in the center of the glass vase from which swing glass cups and fastened to the center arms are two small lily shaped tubes clasped in crystal holders. It graced our desk—carefully guarded you can bet—where it was admired by all and sundry. But glassware as delicate as that hasn't a look in when it comes to hobnobbing with the lowly but oh, so important paper weight, sandles and paste pot, so like the company dishes, it is cached high and dry How come the Christmas gift in June—well the p. w. g. rates a break once in a while.

After months of painstaking preparation and research, Alexander Korda has transferred to the screen the thrilling adventure classic, Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book," which will be shown Thursday through Saturday. It was filmed in technicolor and stars Sabu in the role of Mowgli, a creature that is half-boy and half-wolf.

Fairbanks Back in Feature Film at State Theater

"Corsican Brothers" and "Ridin' the Trail" will be on the State theater screen Sunday and Monday. "Corsican Brothers", which brings Douglas Fairbanks Jr. back to the screen after a 14-month absence, involves a feud between two powerful Corsican families.

The feud is carried on to the following generations, when twin brothers of the destroyed Franchi family decide to avenge the murder of their parents by Baron Colonna.

Martha Scott and William Gargan will co-star in "Chaers for Miss Bishop," which will be on the screen Tuesday and Wednesday along with "Kansas Cyclone," featuring Don Barry and Lynn Merrick.

"Duke of the Navy," which will be shown Thursday through Saturday, is the story of two United States sailors who embark on a treasure hunt in search of lost pirate gold. Also on the screen will be Tim McCoy in "Straight Shooter."

"MOONTIDE" ROMANTIC FILM AT OHIO

Jean Gabin meets Ida Lupino for the first time, beginning their romantic adventures in 20th Century-Fox's "Moontide," which opened at the Ohio theater yesterday. Featured in the cast of the picturization of the Willard Robertson best-selling novel are Thomas Mitchell and Claude Rains.

Pearl Harbor Film Shown

Exploits of U. S. Soldiers in Movie Drama at Marion.

The story of "Remember Pearl Harbor," which will be shown at the Marion theater starting with a midnight show tonight and running through Monday, deals with the exploits of a dauntless group of American soldiers engaged in defending one section of the Philippines against the Japanese aggressors.

Also showing those days will be the "Strange Case of Dr. X," in which six men are marked for death when they are acquitted of murder charges. The mystery-drama features Patric Knowles, Lionel Atwill, and Anne Gwynne.

On the screen Tuesday and Wednesday will be "Night Train" and "Mr. and Mrs. North." "Night Train" is a sky-melodrama starring Margaret Lockwood and Rex Harrison. "Mr. and Mrs. North" is a typical Gracie Allen picture in which she virtually convicts her screen husband of murder and then saves him unexpectedly. Her only clue a lobster claw, Miss Allen inadvertently sovles a mystery that baffles the police and almost sends her husband to prison.

Gene Autry features nine popular songs in "Star-dust on the Sage," which will play Thursday through Saturday. This latest Autry musical western presents him as chief buyer for a national packing concern who discovers that a local agent has been using funds to keep a venture of his going.

Deadly disintegrating gas is the source of great conflict between coast guardsmen and unscrupulous munitions manufacturers in "SOS Coast Guard" showing at the same time. Ralph Byrd plays the leading role with an all-star supporting cast.

Jean Gabin In Film at Ohio

American Debut of French Star Is Made in "Moontide."

Jean Gabin, the French star makes his American film debut in 20th Century-Fox's "Moontide," which opened at the Ohio theater yesterday and will continue through Monday. "Moontide," a story of life along the Pacific waterfront, adapted from the best-selling novel by Willard Robertson, co-stars Ida Lupino and features Thomas Mitchell and Claude Rains in supporting roles.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday brings two mysteries to the screen. "The Man Who Wouldn't Die" and "Who is Hope Schuyler?"

The story of "The Man Who Wouldn't Die" centers around a "dead man who walks and talks," mystifying everybody except Mike Shayne, played by Lloyd Nolan, whose Irish wit and acute mind produce a solution. Marjorie Weaver adds a comedy and romantic touch to the film in her role of a young heiress. Helene Reynolds, and Henry Wilcoxon play the supporting roles.

The background of "Who Is Hope Schuyler?" is the courtroom where special prosecutor Joseph Allen Jr. finds his whole case falling apart due to his inability to produce the "mystery woman of the year," Hope Schuyler.

The court gives the special prosecutor only 48 hours to produce this witness and in that short time the film moves swiftly—an associate of Allen's is killed, an airport burns, destroying important clues, and an attempt is made on the life of the prosecutor himself.

"Sergeant York," which will start Friday and play for seven days at popular prices, is the story of a sharp-shooting farmer who "gets religion" in his own manner and registers as a conscientious objector when he is drafted during the first World war.

Little Grand Circuit Harness Meet To Open Wednesda

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

PREPARATIONS are rapidly being completed for Marion county's leading sporting event of the year—the opening Little Grand Circuit harness racing meet opening Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Marion county fairgrounds.

An eleventh-hour count of horses received last week showed that more than 100 of the nation's leading pacers and trotters are currently working out on the half-mile fairground oval. This figure is expected to be doubled by post time Wednesday night. Many stable owners from the East and Middle West are scheduled to arrive here for the week-end.

An auspicious inauguration of harness racing in Marion will mark the four-day meeting. The nine-race opening card includes the 2:20 pace, 2:25 and three-year-old trots. Stakes of $300 are offered in each of the three events.

Tentative program for the 2:12 trot and 2:10 and two-year-old pace. Schedule for Friday includes the 2:16 pace and the 2:14 and two-year-old trots. Saturday's card will include the classified trot and the free-for-all and 3-year-old pace.

Program for the second week of the meeting will include the early-closing races and sufficient overnight events to take care of all horses on the ground. Frank M. Foster, secretary of the Marion Trotting association, has assured stable owners and drivers. He will announce the program for the second week soon.

Reinsmen reported in over the week-end include Harry Eckart of Huntington, W. Va., with six head; Ike McKay of Pittsburgh, Pa., with four head; Art Blackwell of Logansport, Ind., with seven head; Bob Vallery of Uniontown with nine head, Ralph Baldwin of Shelbyville, Ind., with six head, Saunders Mills of Toledo with 12 head; W. N. (Doc) McMillen of London with 11 head; Jack Noble of Canton with eight head, and Benny Sturgeon of Bellefontaine with eight head.

Both Dr. McMillen and Bob Vallery come here direct from a successful campaign at Buffalo raceway, Hamburg, N. Y. A total of 60 horses are reported in from Saratoga and Buffalo, N. Y., tracks before post time Wednesday. Blackwell, the Logansport, Ind., driver, comes here from that city. Most of the other drivers will be making their first starts of the summer season.

Officials for the meeting are Steve Phillips, Xenia Grand Circuit official who will be starting judge, Wayne Groves of Pinehurst, N. C., presiding judge, and Henry Hartman of Quakertown, Pa., associate judge.

Season tickets for the meet can now be purchased from members of the Women's Board of the Marion City hospital, sponsoring the meet. Proceeds will be donated to the City hospital. Mrs. Robert E. White is general chairman in charge of arrangements.

The Marion meeting rapidly becoming one of the most exciting programs, especially ideal as trial tuneup for the Ohio county fair circuit. Only the September Grand Circuit at Delaware is expected to surpass the Marion meeting as a wide harness feature.

Work is rapidly being completed at the fairgrounds to accommodate horses. Existing facilities at the track will accommodate 178 horses and new stalls erected in the vegetable hall and in the barn will accommodate an additional 25 head. If this is insufficient tents will be pitched to accommodate the remaining drivers. All available stall room was reserved several weeks ago.

The track proper has been worked daily for nearly a month and is in top shape for a full two-week meeting. Secretary Foster said yesterday that he had never seen the half-mile oval in better shape. Mowing of the infield was completed last week-end with the cooperation of county officials. Minor repairs on the grandstand will be finished this week.

Steve Phillips . . . will serve as presiding judge.

W. N. (Doc) McMillen . . . to bring fast stable here.

Indians Have Slim Lead on Third Place After Loss To Boston Red So

Cleveland Blows Chance To Drive Up Behind Yanks; Reds Lose to Dodgers.

By The Associated Press

The Indians held a precarious perch on the third-place rung today instead of being right in the shadow of the owners of second place, the Boston Red Sox.

A 3 to 2 defeat at the hands of Boston before 19,704 customers last night dropped the Tribe two and one-half games behind the visitors and left them only one contest ahead of the Tigers.

Les Fleming did his best to capture the contest, getting three singles and a double—the latter with two out in the ninth—in four trips to the plate, but his mates fared poorly with the slants of Dick Newsome. Otis Hockett's triple and Lou Boudreau's single in the seventh were the only other safeties allowed by Newsome in his pitching duel with Mel Harder, who took his sixth defeat.

The Bostons gathered in a run in the first inning when an error by Ken Keltner let Dom DiMaggio reach first, from whence he stole second and scored on two infield outs. Singles by Ulysses Lupien and Lou Finney accounted for the second run in the fourth, and Boston's final marker came in the sixth. With the bases full on Johnny Pesky's single and a pair of passes, Lupien lifted a long fly which permitted Pesky to score.

Triple Opens Seventh

The home team's half of the seventh opened with Hockett's triple. The right fielder registered a run when Pesky, taking Keltner's smash, threw low to the plate. Jeff Heath dropped a fly to Finney but Fleming got his third single to advance Keltner, who came in on Boudreau's one-bagger. The rally ended with Ray Mack forcing Boudreau and pinch hitter Chubby Dean grounding out.

Johnny Vander Meer hasn't beaten the Brooklyn Dodgers here since he flung a no-hitter at them in June 1938, but today he has another chance.

Davis or Wyatt

A 10-inning, 5-4 victory yesterday made it two straight for the Dodgers in the five-game series. Billy Herman clubbed one of lefty Clyde Shoun's fast ones for a triple and after two intentional walks Pewee Reese squeezed in the winning run with a bunt toward first base which scored Herman, standing up.

Joe Medwick's 27-game hitting string ended six short of the league record.

Elmer Riddle started for the Reds, but was knocked out of the box after seven innings.

It may not be a tipoff on the world series, the outcome of the pennant race, or even the coming all-star game, but the Dodgers have replaced the New York Yankees as the runaway team of the major leagues.

The Dodgers stretched their margin to nine and a half games, their longest of the year, by clipping the Reds.

Yankees Beaten

And in a night game at Chicago, the Yankees bowed to the White Sox 4-2. That reversal, coupled with the Boston Red Sox triumph over Cleveland, chopped another full game off the Yankee lead, leaving the world champs only six and a half games ahead of Boston.

Al Benton toiled a six-hitter at the Philadelphia Athletics as Pinky Higgins chipped in with two doubles to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 3-1 victory.

The St. Louis Browns halted a four-game losing streak by rapping Buck Newsom and the Washington Senators, 6-5, in a night game as Chet Laabs and Harlond Clift drove in three runs apiece.

Cliff Melton notched his ninth win compared with five losses by holding the Pittsburgh Pirates to a half dozen safeties and contributed further to the 4-2 New York Giant victory by bagging two of his team's six hits. Five Bue errors helped the New Yorkers.

Jimmy Foxx clouted his first home run since switching to the National league, a two-run blast with two out in the ninth inning to give the Chicago Cubs a 6-4 decision over the Boston Braves. Home runs by Max West and Paul Waner kept the Braves in the game.

The St. Louis Cardinals' night contest with the tail-end Philadelphia Phils was postponed.

Indianapolis Star Again Leads A.A. Despite Big Drop

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 27—Old man batting slump, striking indiscriminately among the American association's top 10 sluggers, finally has caught up with Joe Bestudik.

The Indianapolis third baseman continued to lead association batsmen, averages to Thursday showed, but he slumped 15 points to .334.

Eric Tipton of Kansas City climbed to second place on a gain of six points displacing Wayne Blackburn, another Indianapolis slugger, who dropped to fourth position. Tipton has a .329 average.

After Bestudik and Tipton in the top 10 came Andy Gilbert, Louisville, .322; Blackburn, .320; Huck Geary, Minneapolis, .316; Ed Stanky, Milwaukee, .315; Joe Vosmik, Minneapolis, .310; Don Lang, Kansas City, .310, George Lacy, Louisville, .310; Hal Peck, Milwaukee, .306.

Bestudik still clung to his leadership in total hits with 87, but he failed to add to his three-base hit total of eight and had to share first honors here with Johnny McCarthy of Indianapolis. McCarthy maintained first in total bases with 137 and in runs batted in with 55.

Home run honors still tested with Harvey Walker of Minneapolis who had 13. George Myatt of Columbus still led the base stealers with 14.

Herb Karpel of Kansas City had five victories without a defeat to set the pace among the pitchers. George Munger of Columbus had won eight and lost two.

Homer Gives Erie Win Over Zanesville Team

ERIE, Pa., June 27—Stan Pietek homered with one on in the ninth to give Erie a 6 to 5 win over Zanesville in the Mid-Atlantic league last night. Harry Keller, Zanesville second baseman, hit for the circuit with the bases empty in the seventh.

Dayton defeated Springfield 4 to 2 and took over third place from Canton whose game with Charleston was postponed.

JOE WELLS REPEATS AS OHIO SENIOR GOLF CHAMPION

East Liverpool Player Makes Thrilling Comeback To Take Second Title.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 27—Joe E. Wells of East Liverpool held the Ohio Golf association's senior title today for the second time in three years, but the 53-year-old apparently blew his chances on the most hair-raising finishes the tourney ever has seen to grab the laurels.

Wells breezed around the Scioto country club layout in even par 72 in Thursday's opening round to take a one-stroke edge over Hamilton's J. R. Simpson, and it was strictly a two-man scrap going into Friday's final 18.

The eastern Ohio star, who won the title in 1940—as well as the state amateur in 1922 and 1924—apparently blew his chances on the first five holes when he soared seven over par, allowing Simpson to pick up four strokes and go out front by three.

Simpson's birdie on the sixth gave him a four-stroke edge with 12 holes to go. They split the seventh, and then Wells made his comeback. Birdies on the eighth, ninth and tenth, while Simpson was getting two pars and a bogie, put them all even again.

Wells bogied the 12th to go one down, but got it back with a par on 13. They parried the next three, but Simpson slipped one over on 17 to drop a stroke behind, and Wells clinched the title with a birdie on 18. His 77, added to the opening 72, gave him 149 for the 36 holes, and a new record for the tourney of a single stroke.

For his victory, Wells received the Bowman championship trophy and a $100 war bond. Approximately $900 in war bonds was distributed to other flight and special prize winners among the 66 entrants.

B. T. Neal of Columbus and defending champion R. A. (Bob) Stranahan of Toledo tied for third place with 154, while in the next spot, with 159, each, were Raleigh Lee of Columbus, 1939 champion, C. Baumgartner of Cincinnati, and W. R. Hair of Hamilton.

MARION HAWKS HOST TO FLARES SUNDAY

Joe Roseberry Is Starting Mound Choice.

Youthful Joe Roseberry, Marion's leading baseball pitcher, will face the Fostoria Red Flares in an Ohio State semi-pro league battle Sunday at 3 p. m. at Lincoln park.

The locals collected a total of 25 base hits off two Fostoria pitchers Wednesday night in racking a lopsided 16-5 victory. King Bacon was the winning pitcher. The victory was the Hawks' third of the season over the Flares.

Other games in the Ohio State circuit Sunday are Fremont at Galion and Tiffin at Findlay.

Northwestern, Stanford Stars Meet in Finals

By The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 27—Manuel De La Torre of Northwestern university, and Frank Tatum Jr., of Stanford met here today in the finals of the national intercollegiate golfing tournament.

De La Torre, son of a former Spanish golfing champion, defeated Bob Kurtz of Yale, 6 and 5, yesterday to gain his final berth. Tatum ousted Harold Gjolme of the University of Washington, 4 to 2, to enter the championship bracket.

Millers and Indians Split Doubleheader

The Minneapolis Millers and the Indianapolis Indians split a doubleheader last night. Their program was the only activity in the loop. The Indians took the opener 3 to 0. Minneapolis won the night-cap 5 to 4.

15 Years a Minor Loop Star, Turpin's Ambition Is To Become Top Pitcher

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22—(Wide World)—Hal Turpin has been kicking around baseball's minor leagues for 15 years, and at a time like this when there is a crying need for pitchers in the majors, his case appears stranger than ever.

Tireless Turpin is the old reliable who helped pitch the Seattle Rainiers to Pacific Coast league pennants the last three seasons, and just why big league scouts have passed him up year after year is one of the perennial puzzles of the game.

"Too old" has been the stock comment of the ivory specialists about the big right-hander, but many a scout will blush at mention of the names of Ray (Wiz) Kremer and Curt Davis who were dying on the vine for similar reasons years ago.

Best In 1935

Kremer was with Oakland and in his thirties when Joe Devine, then a rookie scout, took a chance and sent him to Pittsburgh in 1935. For the next two years Kremer was the best pitcher in the National league, based on the lowest earned run average.

Davis has become one of the standout pitchers of the majors but none would have dreamed it during the five years he was being overlooked by the buyers' market as a member of the San Francisco club. He was finally drafted for $7500 when nearing 30.

Turpin, who looks, acts and talks like a farmer, and is a farmer, by gosh, in his home town of Yoncalla, Ore., will be 36 years old next September. But his manager, Bill Skiff, who once had a hand in the Yankees farm club system, would back his ace to win in the majors right now.

Started in 1927

So would President Charlie Graham of San Francisco who last season asked various scouts why they didn't take on Turpin, and always was told "he's too old."

To which Graham replies, "I don't care how old he is, I think he has the control and variety of stuff to win easily in the big leagues."

Turpin started in professional ball with San Francisco in 1927. He's traveled the minor league ranges far and wide since then, playing under 12 managers on seven different clubs.

With Seattle the last five seasons he has been a mainstay. Last year he was the second best flinger in the league—20 wins, 6 losses and a 2.51 earned run average. The year before he won 23 and lost 11 for 2.73, and the season before racked up a 23-10 and 2.50 record. He's going like a prairie fire again this season.

Too Old in 1933

As long ago as 1933 he was diagnosed by scouts as "too old" yet his 2.93 earned runs per game average was the lowest in the Coast league that year. Earned runs are an important item to a scout and Turpin's 11 seasons in this circuit yield an impressive 4 per game.

He works so effortless he seems colorless but he has a good assortment of curves and bull's-eye control.

After 15 years of it he was asked this season what was his life's ambition.

"To pitch in the major leagues," he replied.

Major Golf Record Score May Tumble in Girard Tourney

By The Associated Press

GIRARD, O., June 27 — What began as pre-tournament speculation moved into the realm of possibility today—that the world record 264 for major league golf competition might be tied or bettered in the second $5,000 Mahoning Valley open.

Mahoning's revamped par of 34-34—68 took a merry beating in the first 18 holes yesterday, the lead going to three campaigners who were four under regulation figures — Horton Smith of Pinehurst, N. C., Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot artist from Abingdon, Pa., and Sam Byrd, the ex-Yankee outfielder from Ardmore, Pa.

They worked their way to the clubhouse with identical rounds of 33-31—64 to lead the field of 179, making the odds none too prohibitive on the chances of trimming the mark set by Craig Wood at Bloomfield, N. J., in winning the Metropolitan open of 1940.

In the second spot at 65 a young local pro, Jack Miskell, was tied with Lloyd Mangrum of Oakmont, Pa. Miskell shot 32-33 and Mangrum 34-31.

By registering a 31-35, defending champion Clayton Heafner of Durham, N. C., found himself bracketed at 66 with Jimmy Thompson of Del Monte, Calif., 34-32; Rod Munday of Toledo, 34-32, and Dutch Harrison of Harrisburg, Pa., who had a pair of 33's.

Back at 67 was Ben Hogan, the habitual money winner who garnered the recent Hale America and started as a favorite in the local test. His card was 35-32. With him were Herman Keiser of Akron, with the same tally, Bill Burke of Cleveland, 31-36, and a dark horse, Al Smith of Martinsville, Va., 33-34.

At par were a Pennsylvania pair, Ted Blaner of Sharon, 36-32, and R. G. Johnston of West Middlesex, 35-33.

After today's round of 18, the final 36 holes of medal play will be fought out Sunday, the winner receiving $1,000.

Ace Speedboat Drivers Race at Niagara Today

By The Associated Press

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 27 — Some of the nation's ace speedboat drivers, including four record holders, gun their racing craft over Niagara river today in the start of the two-day Buffalo international aquacade.

Heading the champions is veteran Jack (Pop) Cooper, Kansas City, Mo., holder of the world 91-cubic inch mark.

Other titlists entered include Joe Taggart, Canton, O., whose Tommy Ann III established a world mark for 225-cubic inch hydroplanes last year, and Henry Schnake, also of Canton, the 135-cubic inch world champion.

STORAGE OF WHEAT PROBLEM IS ACUTE

Space Lacking To Handle Crop Ready for Harvest.

With Ohio wheat storage facilities capable of handling only half of the anticipated crop now nearly ready for harvesting, Marion county agriculture agents are promoting a program to assist the farmer with his storage problem and to help alleviate the pressure on normal storage points.

C. P. Harper, chairman of the Marion county AAA, said today last minute information seems to indicate the government's program to make pre-fabricated and "second hand" storage bins available to farmers in this district will be of little avail.

He said materials for pre-fabricated bins apparently were not obtainable and that not enough old bins can be imported here to help appreciably.

However, Mr. Harper said farmers are being urged to repair old buildings and bins to handle as much wheat as possible regionally. He said the loan rate will be $1.26 for No. 1 wheat this year and $1.25 for No. 2. In addition, a storage fee of 7 cents per bushel will be paid, he said.

He reported some counties south of Marion have lessened the problem some by utilizing space in old buildings and in parts of buildings which are not used. However, the backlog against the 1941 harvest which already overspans considerable space in elevators and storage bins is the same the state over, Mr. Harper said.

Officials of the Marion Milling Co. said their ability to handle more of the new harvest wheat will depend largely upon the outcome of their flour sales. Storage facilities at the Marion Grain and Supply Co. are as limited as elsewhere, officials said.

A. H. Smith, Marion county agriculture agent, said educational letters are being sent to Marion county farmers advising them of ways and means whereby more storage facilities on their own farms may be provided.

Green Camp 4-H Club Has Outing and Picnic

Special to The Star

GREEN CAMP — The Gold Pin 4-H club had a picnic supper, swimming and skating party at Crystal lake Wednesday. Guests were Jean Ann Bricker, Anne Coate, Betty Robbins and Eileen Carmine. Jeanne Mossbarger and Margie Sorrides will be on the refreshment committee and Jeanne Mossbarger will give a demonstration on cooking at a meeting July 8 at the school.

Skinnay Ennis Band on Cedar Point Bill

Skinnay Ennis, newest of the name bandmasters to rise to sensational fame, is the holiday week spot July 3-through 9, at the Cedar Point grand ballroom. Ennis brings his company of musicians and entertainers from a record of shows before some 125,000 men in camps throughout the country, appearing on the coast-to-coast "Victory Caravan," and a long stand on the Bob Hope radio program. Featured with Ennis are Carmine Caldarelli, blond songstress, and Sonny Dawson, yodeler.

Special dance sessions planned for the Fourth of July week-end at Cedar Point include Saturday and Sunday matinees in addition to the regular evening dance programs for the holiday weeks.

Col. Baldinger Ready for Glider Program

Lt. Col. O. M. Baldinger, former Marion resident, has arrived in Columbus to take command of the glider training school to be opened soon at the new Lockbourne air base near Columbus, news dispatches stated today.

Col. Baldinger, who has been liaison officer with the southeast army airforce training center at Maxwell Field, in Alabama, recently was assigned the command of the new glider training center.

The training program at the field will be under the direction of Major R. F. Burnham. The field will train men between the ages of 18 and 36 as pilots for single man and transport gliders.

Col Baldinger said today that although construction work at the field was not complete he would stick to July 1 as the date for opening the training program.

General Welfare Group Hears Meeting Report

Seven new members were enrolled when the General Welfare association met Thursday at the Community center. Charles McCombs gave a report of a regional meeting in Columbus at which Arthur L. Johnson of the national organization was the chief speaker. Other reports were also given by Mrs. Minnie Schiller and Mrs. Tillie Sweeringen. Mrs. Schiller was elected musician and Mrs. Mary Cox musician.

Records Reveal How Health Comes to Babies from City's Free Clinic

Woman's Hospital Board Sells Race Meet Tickets To Help Maintain This Vitally Needed Public Service.

Records at the free baby clinic supported by the Woman's Board of the Marion City Hospital through the sale of tickets for the Little Grand Circuit meet and other activities show the gratifying results of the work done by this active and civic-minded group making possible restoration of babies who otherwise would not have the benefit of medical care and advice. Proceeds of the sale of books of tickets for the races now being conducted by the members under the direction of Mrs. J. Malcolm Strelitz, ticket chairman, will again be used to finance the work of the clinic.

Hours could be spent in reading the histories of children given medical care at the free clinic and the progress of their improvement. Work of the board is not confined to children eligible for treatment but, when occasion demands, reaches into homes where special food for underprivileged children is drastically needed, or where specialized care is important to health. Records show that a child needing hospitalization for some time was sent to the hospital and funds also were available when a family budget failed to provide the necessary amount of milk for a child too young to take advantage of the free milk provided other children in the family through the school nutrition program of the Red Cross.

Some of the Records

The following records show the far-reaching and priceless aid given babies who otherwise might never know the meaning of health, through the public's generous support of the clinic:

When baby A, age two years, was admitted to the Clinic, he had lost complete use of his limbs, and his entire nervous system was affected due to a severe type of avitaminosis, (a pronounced deficiency of vitamins). The doctor in charge of the clinic advised hospitalization. Intravenouses of glucose and ascine were administered every four hours, and formula feedings were given every hour. A daily visit by the doctor, careful nursing and watching, and laboratory tests were required; and after 35 days the child was able to walk and had gained in weight. Although he was then released from the hospital, the clinic continued to supply him with the necessary vegetables, cereals, and milk.

A short social history will show that this family is deserving of help. The father is ill and is unable to keep steady work; and the entire family including two other children under five years of age were living on less than $5 per week. The family is now living with the wife's parents, who are tenant farmers.

Patty, age seven months, and weighing less than nine pounds was admitted to the hospital upon doctor's recommendation. After careful study a final diagnosis of pyloric spasm, due to milk allergy, was made. In this case dilation was affected by a rigid administration of the proper diet and medication; and Patty was soon able to retain each feeding and had gained almost four pounds before she left the hospital after an 11 day's stay.

The condition of Harold S., age 11 months, was also diagnosed avitaminosis. However his eyes were the affected part and were partially closed with stys. A corrective diet and medication was advised by the doctor. The proper foods and medicines were supplied from the clinic cupboard until the child's eyes were normal again.

War in Russia and Egypt Continue Chief Arguments for Conservatism.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 27 — It was another case of safety-first in today's stock market as most buyers merely nibbled at favorites and sellers exhibited equal timidity.

The war crises in Russia and Egypt remained as the principal argument for conservative market operations. In addition, many traders slightly inclined for the long pull kept commitments light pending clarification of the forthcoming tax program.

The list got off to a hesitant start. Fractional gains and losses were pretty evenly divided at the close. Transfers were around 100,000 shares for the two hours, one of the smallest aggregates since August, 1940.

Offerings of American Telephone dwindled after yesterday's relapse blamed on dividend reductions by more of the company's subsidiaries. The issue was about even during most of the proceedings.

Chrysler opened off more than a point but came back substantially. Occasional advances were recorded for U. S. Steel, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, General Electric, General Motors, Woolworth and Consolidated Edison.

Faltering the greater part of the time were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Kennecott, American Smelting, Du Pont, International Harvester, and U. S. Rubber.

American Troops in Ireland Stage Show for Royalty

BY RICE YARNER
Associated Press Writer

WITH THE UNITED STATES FORCES IN NORTHERN IRELAND, June 27 — United States troops from almost all states seemed pretty well agreed today that Queen Elizabeth is "a swell girl" after putting on a show for the king and queen which drew congratulations from the king because of its "impressive efficiency."

Demonstrating everything from bridge-building to doughnut making, the American soldiers staged an all-out mock battle for the royal visitors on their three-day trip to northern Ireland. Their majesties rode in jeeps and tanks, and examined guns, gas masks and field kitchens.

The performance of the Americans led one member of their majesties' entourage to remark: "It was the best show put on during the war and the king seems happier than I have ever seen him."

When it was all over the king asked Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, commander of American forces in northern Ireland, to convey to the troops his "hearty congratulations on the impressive efficiency" with which the demonstrations and operations were performed.

The king and queen started their day by reviewing part of the armored force and then took a ride in tanks over pits and bunkers as a make-believe battle swept about them. They saw anti-tank gunners score 14 direct hits on a moving target.

The queen stepped up to Sergt. Reuben Krage of Elyria, O., and asked him about his howitzer. "It's a beautiful weapon," the sergeant told the queen, adding later:

"She's a swell girl. She talked like she knew nothing about guns."

The luncheon for the royal party was prepared by cooks under Staff Sergeants Allyn Wilson of Pocatello, Idaho, and Wilbert J. Speller of Dayton, O. The meal was roast beef, peas, tomatoes, pear salad, cherry pie and coffee.

Stanley Napersky of Wilkes Barre, Pa., and 56 other men of his company won the honor of lunching with the king and queen in efficiency competitions before the visit.

One of the soldiers who lunched with the king and queen was Lowell E. Lautzenheiser of Maxinio, Stark county, O.

the mood for a lasting settlement can be developed. Messrs. Hoover and Gibson lend the weight of their personal authority to this general procedure.

This is a notable event. Governor Landon has already indorsed the Hoover-Gibson book; Mr. Willkie's position has never been in doubt. Thus we may take great comfort in the fact that there is a high degree of unity of opinion among our political leaders.

On the more advanced problems of the peacemaking the Hoover-Gibson book has almost nothing to say. It does recognize the existence of the extremely perplexing question: with what kind of German government can a lasting peace be negotiated? The authors' answer is: with a representative government.

This is no doubt right, Ferrero, who has discussed the problem more thoroughly than any one else, has come to the same conclusion that legitimate governments which alone can make reasonably dependable agreements, are, in the modern world, governments which depend upon popular consent.

The application of the principle is, however, difficult. For when Hitler falls there will not exist in Germany a representative government to replace him, and therefore it remains to be seen and decided what kind of provisional German government the United Nations would be able to recognize. This is a problem of great moment, which will become a problem of extreme urgency, and it cannot be left out of a memorandum on the problems of the peace.

Written in Abstract

The general weakness of the book is that it discusses peace in the abstract and in general and has almost nothing to say about how to make peace with Germany, Japan and their satellites. Thus the two most important references to Germany are a paragraph on the disarming of Germany and one which is entitled "German Unity."

Mr. Hoover and Mr. Gibson hope for the total disarmament of Germany to the point where "the whole officer and military caste" would be excluded from serving even in a police constabulary. This is indeed a drastic recommendation, made, as they say, to bring about "the disappearance from the world" of the German warrior caste. However, the authors do not think this can be done. It is "too much to be hoped for in this world."

In the light of this admission, which seems to me quite correct, we must consider what Mr. Hoover and Mr. Gibson have to say under the head of "German Unity." For if the warrior caste will somehow persist for at least some long time to come, then the question of what is to be comprised by German unity is the greatest problem of the peace. What the authors say is that "there can be no lasting peace with a dismembered Germany." The sound course is to give the Germans an incentive for abandoning their old ways and becoming a peaceful nation."

Agreeing about the incentive, let us ask ourselves what is "a dismembered Germany"? Does German unity mean the Germany of 1870 or of 1919 or of 1942? Does "Germany" include Austria, which it never included before Hitler? Does it include Bohemia, which it never included before Hitler? If Austria recoveres her historic independence, if Bohemia recovers her independence, will "Germany" have been dismembered? Messrs. Hoover and Gibson will have to face questions of this sort when they write the sequel to this book. For these are, among many others, real questions which will have to be answered, and they cannot be answered without passing beyond generalities.

It is evident, however, that the authors have written a provocative book in a spirit of enlightened good will, and that is unquestionably a service for which their many friends will be grateful.

Stock Movement Slow on Boston Wool Market

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, June 27—The commercial bulletin said of the Boston wool market today:

"A little more inquiry has been in evidence this week, indicating the will to do business and prices generally hold steady, except on medium bright wools which are distinctly on the easy side. Most of the business done, however, has been on low South American and scoured wools.

"Foreign markets are little changed."

B. & O. Railroad Revenue 25 Millions Last Month

By The Associated Press

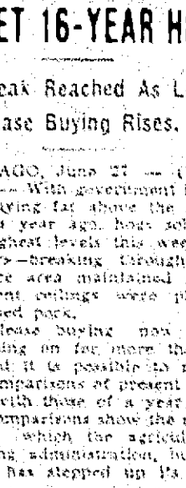
BALTIMORE, June 27 — The Baltimore and Ohio railroad yesterday announced revenues for May totaled $25,977,092, the highest for the month since 1923 and an increase of $5,885,189 over May, 1941.

Net income for May amounted to $2,847,859 after deducting fixed charges, including all interest, and providing for amortization of defense projects and accrual for federal income taxes. This compared with net income of $8,049,420 in May, 1941, when no income tax allowances were made.

Operating revenues for the first five months of 1942 totaled $114,022,364, an increase of $29,002,180 over the same period in 1941. Net income for the same period increased $3,524,780 over 1941 to $9,410,407.

4-H CLUB ELECTS

Mary Lyons was chosen secretary at a meeting of the Happy Home Makers 4-H club Wednesday afternoon in the Grand Prairie school. Miss Glea Angles, advisor, was in charge of the meeting. The members worked on projects and books. A skating party was planned at Crystal Lake in the near future. Patriotic songs completed the program.



WEEK'S HOG PRICES SET 16-YEAR HIGH

New Peak Reached As Lend-Lease Buying Rises.

CHICAGO, June 27 — (Wide World) — With government lend-lease buying far above the same period a year ago, hogs sold at their highest levels this week in 16 years—breaking through the resistance area maintained since permanent ceilings were placed on dressed pork.

Lend-lease buying now has been going on for more than a year and it is possible to make some comparisons of present purchases with those of a year ago. These comparisons show the manner in which the agricultural marketing administration, buying agency, has stepped up its program.

In the first three weeks of this month the AMA took 53,145,000 pounds of canned pork, 82,338,000 pounds of cured and frozen pork and 21,031,000 pounds of lard. In all of June, 1941, purchases totaled only 6,604,000 pounds of canned pork, 10,083,000 pounds of cured and frozen pork and 18,442,00 pounds of lard.

Hogs closed the week at a top of $14.70, 20 cents above last week-end and a new peak since September, 1926. All weights, as well as sows, shared in the advance.

Fed steer arrivals were heavy and quotations were steady to 25 cents lower, choice weights showing the decline.

Spring lambs closed the week strong to mostly 25 cents higher. Marketings continued to dwindle.

Sciatica

One of the fascinating things about modern medical research is that something may be discovered which looks like a very rare and unusual condition and after investigation it turns out that it throws a great deal of light on some old and common condition.

Sciatica, or neuralgia of the sciatic nerve, is certainly one of the oldest of human complaints. The medical profession had about given up expecting to find anything new about it and, lo and behold, recently a condition was discovered which probably explains 75 per cent of all cases of sciatica.

The sciatic nerve is given off from the lower part of the spinal cord, emerges from the openings between the lower vertebrae, goes down over the sacro-iliac joint and comes out into the leg about near the bone that you sit on and is distributed to the back part of the leg and calf. When it begins to ache—the condition which we call sciatica—it causes about as excruciating discomfort as anything that can happen. Medical men have ascribed the cause of sciatica or inflammation or injury of the nerve everywhere along its course from sacro-iliac strain to impingment on the nerve in the sitting posture, to focal infection, and so forth and so on.

Not long ago, in fact as short a time ago as 1934, some surgeons found that slight injuries would cause a peculiar condition in the vertebral column. The bodies of the vertebrae are separated by cartilaginous cushion in the middle of which is a soft globule of tissue called the nucleus pulposus. This nucleus pulposus gets pushed around with considerable ease and can be herniated out between the vertebrae, causing pressure on the spinal nerve roots.

At first this was considered to be quite rare but in the time that has intervened it is found more and more often as diagnostic thought has become more alert; doctors have been taught to look for it. Furthermore, a great many cases of low back pain and sciatica have been found to be due to this cause. When seen at operation, the nucleus pulposus is sticking out between the vertebrae and stretching the roots of the sciatic nerve so that it is evident to any observer that it is causing severe pain.

As I said above, some neurosurgeons believe that this causes sciatica in as much as 75 to 80 per cent of all cases. The condition can be relieved by very simple surgical procedures which remove the protruding muscleus pulposus and take the strain off the roots of the sciatic nerve.

Of course, it is advisable to try every form of conservative treatment first, such as resting the patient in a plaster cast, manipulation, injection of the nerve and taking plenty of time before trying surgery. In order to prove definitely whether sciatica is due to herniated nucleus pulposus it is possible to visualize it with properly planned x-ray studies.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Tells Madge of Wiles She Used to Effect Reconciliation with Redfield.

"HOW does a yellow cur always react?" Mary retorted, with an inflection in her tones that betrayed her loathing of Stephen Redfield.

"He is wanted to trample all over me that he was pulling at his collar as if it were three sizes too tight," she went on. "But you'd done your spadework so well in that note—and was I glad I'd had a chance to read it twice, once from Olina and once from her mother—that he was afraid he wouldn't be able to compete with Noel's romantic reconciliation stunt.

Mary's Number Two Smile

"He tried to be quite high hat at first," she went on, "I simply said 'Hello, Steve' when I met him, as I always do at the theater, and he answered 'Hello, Mary' but with an air—if you know what I mean."

"I can imagine it," I told her with a grim smile.

"Then," she said, with a reminiscent grin, "I flashed one of my number two smiles on him. I didn't want to use a number one until I saw how he was going to react to the second grader. But he snatched at the bait and smiled back.

"Oh, but it was an expressive smile," she rattled on. "It dripped reproach all over the place, and there was even a touch of hidden sadness in it—a most convincing and artistic performance.

"Then he told me, with a noble, forgiving air, that I had hurt him terribly by the things I had said last night, but that he realized how upset I must have been by Noel's actions.

"I wanted to tear up that map of his with my fingernails," she said viciously, "but all I could do was to deflate his vanity a bit by telling him that in any excitement I had exaggerated Noel's murderous jealousy of him, and that you had succeeded in convincing Noel that he must not degrade himself and me by any attack upon Stephen."

"So you brought me into it," I said, with a reproachful look at her.

"I had to," she retorted defensively. "I didn't want him to think I'd done the work of leading my husband back to sanity."

"Why not?" I queried.

Her look at me this time held a touch of exasperation.

"Cant you see," she asked, "that I couldn't very well let Steve get the idea that Noel and I were especially pally, when I was trying to get it over—subtly, of course—that I was still fascinated by his personality as well as his theories?"

"At this juncture, I suppose I should tell you maternally that you ought to be ashamed of yourself," I said, "but I can't very well, for I know how much my father depends upon this contact of yours with Redfield.

"It is also most necessary that Redfield be kept unsuspicious of the espionage upon him.

"Steve's masculine vanity and his intense egotism are the keys upon which you have to play, and you evidently are bringing the right kind of tune out of them.

"I hope so," she said. "At any rate, after some catechat and thissing, thating and thussing, there existed a dinner date tomorrow night for Stevie and Olina and me. And Stevie evidently has buried the hatchet deep down."

"But that is wonderful news," I told her with elation. "Father will be so pleased."

Then I looked at her speculatively.

"I don't want to be inquisitive," I said, "but I am anxious to know what was Noel's reaction to that news—and the rest of it."

SUDDENLY, DIRECTLY BENEATH THE TWO BOYS, LOOMS THE HULK OF A RISING SUBMARINE
LATER!...
LOOK, CAPTAIN!
SO! WE SEEM TO HAVE SNARED A COUPLE OF "FISH"
TAKE THEM BOTH BELO I MAY HA USE FOR T IF THEY ALIVE

Thimble Theater

I AIN'T HAD TIME TO INSPECK THIS YAP WARSHIP I CAPTURED
SOUNDS SOLID
TAP TAP
IF IT IS OKAY, I KNOWS WHAT I KIN DO WITH IT
BLAM
CRASH
HELP!
YAS, THE STEEL IS THICK ENUFF TO STOP ALMOSK ANY KIND'A SHOTS
WHAT'S THE BIG IDEA
I YAM GONER OFFER THIS WARSHIP TO UNCLE SAM— P'RAPS HE WILL AST ME TO RUN IT FOR 'IM

WALLY, I GOT UP AND WEEDED UNTIL EVERY TIME I CLOSE MY EYES I SEEM TO SEE WEEDS BEFORE THEM
I KNOW HOW IT IS
I CAN'T STAND THE SIGHT OF ANOTHER WEED
WELL, YOU NEEDN'T SEE ANY, IF YOU KEEP OUT OF THE GARDEN
HERE YOU ARE, TILLIE
OH MAC! TAKE IT AWAY!
GLENNY, DO YOU SEE ANYTHING ABOUT THIS GOWN THAT WOULD MAKE A GIRL SCREAM
NOT IF AI SAN GIRL

Toots and Casper

By Jimmy M

"PEACHES PIPP" TRIED TO MAKE LOVE TO ME LAST NIGHT, BUT I'LL FOOL HER TONIGHT! I'M TAKING HER TO TOOTS AND CASPER'S FOR THE EVENING WHERE SHE WON'T HAVE A CHANCE TO GET GAY.
I COULD HAVE HUGGED COL. HOOFER WHEN HE REFUSED TO LET ME MAKE LOVE TO HIM, BUT I'LL TEST HIM FURTHER!
USO

HELLO, MISS PIPP—WE'RE CALLING ON TOOTS AND CASPER TONIGHT, YOU KNOW.
I PHONED AND CANCELED OUR DATE WITH THEM, DEAR.
JIMMY MURPHY
I WANTED TO BE ALONE WITH YOU IN THE MOONLIGHT, DARLING! PUT YOUR ARMS AROUND ME, DEAR.
STOP THAT MISS PIPP, I'M A MARRIED MAN AND I LOVE MY WIFE.

Bringing Up Father

By George Mc

WHAT IS IT—MAGGIE?
ON YOUR WAY DOWN-TOWN—I WANT YOU TO CALL ON THE SOLDIER THAT'S ON DUTY AT THAT LISTENING-POST NEAR YOUR OFFICE—I SENT HIM THAT SWEATER THAT I KNITTED—AND I'D LIKE TO KNOW IF HE IS WEARING IT—
I'M GLAD THAT MAGGIE IS DOIN' HER BIT IN THIS WAR—
USO
WHAT?
THAT'S THE SWEATER! AN'-BOY!! IT'S SOME TENT!

NOW OUR FARMS ARE ALL READY FOR ANOTHER CROP—HA, HA, HA—WOULDN'T IT BE FUNNY, IF WE SHOULD RAISE CORN?
BUT CORN'S NOT FUNNY
NO, I'M LAUGHIN' AT YOU AN' ME—IF WE RAISE CORN, WE'LL HAVE TO CLIMB A STEP LADDER TO LOOK AT OUR CROPS
LISTEN! THERE'S THE BELL FOR LUNCH
DING DONG DANG
